'New Deal' Wins Victories In Ohio, Nebraska Voting

By the Associated Press.

Both major parties today professed to find comfort in returns from Tuesday's primaries which showed "New Deal" advocates in Ohio and Nebraska named to run for the senate against avowed opponents of the administration's policies.

The democratic choice in Nebraska was Representative E. R. Burke, enthusiastic Roosevelt follower. He is opposed by Robert G. Simmons, former representative, who takes the emphatic stand that the president is headed in the wrong direction.

A. W. (Honest Vic) Donahay, former governor, is the democratic senatorial nominee in Ohio. Like Burke, he endorses the administration's course. The voters have a clear choice between endorsement of support of the "New Deal" in November, for Senator Fess, veteran republican and one of the president's most scathing critics, was selected to oppose Donahay.

White House Alone.

The turmoil of the contests in four states Tuesday had hardly died away before President Roosevelt said flatly he was taking no part in any campaign, regardless of any representation to the contrary.

So eager, however, are many democratic candidates for the appearance of White House support that the claims and counter-claims probably will continue.

Democrats listed several specific items in support of their claim that the balloting proved the administration retains its hold upon the people and that its popularity is growing. The president is holding aloof, but men in high democratic circles openly pleaded at the Nebraska senatorial result. Burke defeated Governor Charles W. Bryan. In democratic circles the former was regarded as a more ardent follower of the president than the late William Jennings Bryan's brother.

Then, too, administration followers pointed out the fact that the democratic vote in Ohio promised to exceed republican ballots for the first time in a primary election in the buckeye state.

Farley's Congratulations.

Postmaster General Farley today was quick to congratulate Donahay upon his victory, and gave him his support. A factor in that, from the republican viewpoint, was the intense struggle waged in democratic ranks which brought out voters who otherwise might have remained at home.

The republicans also felt that some in administration inner ranks would have preferred that Representative Charles West be the democratic senatorial nominee.

West was supported by Senator Bulkley, democrat, but he fared as did Representative Milligan in Missouri, who had the backing of Senator Clark, democrat. Governor George White ran third in the three-way Ohio race.

Thus far, so far as records go, no democratic candidate for the senate or house who said he opposed Rooseveltian policies has been named.

On the other hand, the republicans have had little difficulty in getting the voters to approve senatorial and house candidates who ran on anti-"New Deal" platforms. Fess is an example. So is Simmons, Senator Reed of Pennsylvania; Senator Hatfield, of West Virginia, and quite a few others.

Futrell Is Victor.

All four states chose gubernatorial nominees Tuesday. Governor J. M. Futrell, democrat, was renominated in Arkansas and his election is conceded.

Martin L. Davey, tree surgeon, apparently, is the democratic choice in Ohio. With only 28 precincts missing, he held a good lead over his nearest opponent.

Clarence J. Brown had a 100,000 lead for the republican gubernatorial nomination with 57 precincts out.

Governor Ben C. Ross, of Idaho, who was assured the democratic nomination for third term. He will be opposed by Frank L. Stephan, former republican state attorney-general.

Dwight Griswold, weekly newspaper publisher, had a commanding lead for the republican gubernatorial nomination in Nebraska, but the democratic result was in doubt.

R. L. Cochran, state engineer, had a slim lead with Representative Terry Carpenter second and Eugene O'Sullivan, Omaha lawyer, third.

On a tabulation of three-fourths of the vote, Earl Page, legless commissioner of mines, manufactures and agriculture, had a commanding lead over state Treasurer Roy V. Leonard in the race for treasurer. Page's total was 90,925 against Leonard's 53,650.

All of Arkansas' congressmen, seeking re-election, were virtually assured of nomination in the primary with the exception of Congressman D. D. Glover, of the sixth district. Opposed by a neighbor, John McClellan, Glover received 11,679 and McClellan 17,848 from 248 of the district's 300 precincts.

With four opponents in the seventh district, Congressman Tillman B. Parks received 7,889 against 4,925 for Neill C. Marsh, El Dorado attorney, runner-up. A runoff primary will be necessary in the district.

ROSS, STEPHAN FACE BATTLE IN NOVEMBER

BOISE, Idaho, Aug. 15.—(AP)—Governor C. Ben Ross, democrat, won renomination in yesterday's Idaho primary and will be opposed for a third term in November by Frank L. Stephan, former attorney-general, the victor in the republican gubernatorial race.

With more than two-thirds of the total vote tabulated today Governor Ross, a former cowboy, had polled 24,330 votes to 13,739 for Martin and 6,856 for Asher B. Wilson.

"I consider the vote an endorsement of my administration during the last 3 1/2 years," said Governor Ross.

In the republican primary the vote for governor gave Stephan 14,188; J. Wesley Holden 8,885 and H. F. Fair 3,237.

BRYAN IS DEFEATED

LINCOLN, Neb., Aug. 15.—(AP)—Edward R. Burke, a first-term congressman from Omaha, rode an avalanche of primary election ballots today to a decisive victory over Governor Charles Bryan for the democratic senatorial nomination.

Pledged to support President Roosevelt, his vote in yesterday's balloting rolled near the 100,000 mark with three-fourths of the state's precincts in and Bryan beaten by more than 2 to 1. The triumph answered the demand of Arthur F. Mullen, former democratic national committeeman, to drive Bryan out of state politics.

In the November election Burke will face an aggressive New Deal opponent, former Congressman Robert G. Simmons.

Dwight Griswold, Gordon publisher, republican, and R. L. Cochran, for 12 years state engineer, democrat, had secured the gubernatorial nomination. The democratic congressman, A. C. Shallenberger, was beaten in the primaries. The other, Edgar Howard, won out but his margin was none too large.

The total democratic vote apparently exceeded the republican vote by a substantial figure.

Returns from 1,552 of 2,028 precincts for the democratic senatorial nomination gave Bryan 39,050; Burke 93,027.

With 1,538 precincts reported for the republican senatorial nomination the count was: Robert Smith 28,255; Simmons 50,027; K. S. Wherry 32,233.

Returns from 1,576 precincts for the democratic gubernatorial nomination gave: Carpenter 33,170; Eugene O'Sullivan 33,457; Roy Cochran 41,789.

Returns from 1,542 precincts for republican gubernatorial nomination gave: Ted Metcalfe 29,038; Griswold 70,186; C. A. Sorenson 31,900.

JAMES MARTIN GRAY TO BE BURIED TODAY

Funeral services of James Martin Gray, 79, pioneer Atlantan and retired insurance executive, will be held Tuesday morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. E. F. Lindgren, 16 West Pace's Ferry place, N. W., will be conducted at 11 o'clock this morning at the First Baptist church. The Rev. Walter Blackwell will officiate and burial will be in Crest Lawn cemetery with H. M. Patterson & Son in charge.

Mr. Gray had been active in insurance circles in Atlanta until he was forced to retire 13 years ago because of ill health. He was the son of the late Judge James Gray and Jessie Gray, pioneer settlers.

Rich's College Board Approves Fall Styles

Rich's College Board, composed of representative girls from southern colleges, following its annual custom, met recently with Oscar Strauss, advertising manager, and gave their approval to the dozens of fashions Rich's College Shop had assembled for them. The girls voted for tailored simplicity and against fussy classroom and campus styles. In the picture are members of the board and others. Top row, reading left to right, Misses Frances Schwab, Katherine Calhoun, Caroline McCarley, Jean Baper, Laura Whitner, Elizabeth Woolford. Bottom row, Misses Marjorie Gould, Louise Donehoo; Irene Hamly and Mary Sage, Mrs. J. Rivers Hall, head of Rich's College Shop; Miss Dorothy Cutts and Miss Mildred North, seated.

COURT DISMISSES RAIL RATE CASE

U. S. Judges Refuse To Act; Attorneys To Enter State Courts.

Denied a federal injunction Wednesday to prevent the Georgia public service commission from putting into effect on August 20 an 18 per cent class freight rate reduction, attorneys for 44 railroads operating in the state said they would carry their plea to the state courts.

A three-judge federal court, made up of Circuit Judge Richard W. Walker, of Huntsville, Ala.; District Judge William I. Grubb, of Birmingham, Ala.; and District Judge J. Edgar Underwood, of Atlanta, dismissed the railroads' injunction petition on the ground that federal court had no jurisdiction under the federal Johnson bill to interfere with the action of state utility regulatory bodies. The Johnson bill provides utilities must take their grievances into the state courts.

In dismissing the injunction petition, the court held that the public service commission's 18 per cent class freight rate reduction was a separate and distinct action from the previous 28 per cent reduction order which was enjoined by the federal court.

The question whether the newest rate reduction order was a separate and distinct action from the previous order, or whether it was merely supplementary to the 28 per cent rate order, was the question around which the discussion by attorneys for both state and railroads revolved.

As soon as the case was called, Assistant Attorney-General John Gore, who has had charge of the public service commission cases throughout the recent litigation, moved for a dismissal of the petition on the ground the Johnson bill took away the federal court's authority.

Sidney S. Alderman, of Washington, special counsel representing the railroads, argued that the present hearing was not a separate action from the previous order which was enjoined, but merely supplementary, and that therefore the court had authority to act. At the time the Johnson bill was signed, the previous rate cut order was pending in federal court, and therefore came under the federal court's jurisdiction.

Mr. Alderman cited many instances, including the Missouri rate cases of 1905, to prove his contention that the supreme court of the United States had recognized that actions similar to the present case were supplementary, and a part of previous orders such as the 28 per cent order of a few weeks ago.

Mr. Alderman argued also that the 18 per cent rate cut was just as confiscatory as the first and said that despite the fact that the railroads were public carriers, their revenue could not be so cut that it would fail to cover the "out-of-pocket" costs of operation.

Appearing with Mr. Alderman as counsel for the railroad was W. N. McChesney, counsel for the Southern railroad.

Mr. Gore was assisted by Assistant Attorney-General B. D. Murphy and Jack Manning, rate expert for the public service commission.

The class rate cut order of 18 per cent, and which will go into effect next Monday morning unless the case is successful in obtaining an injunction in state courts before that time, does not affect the commodities hauled by railroads. Commodities are articles which are hauled in carloads or more usually in unit loads. Class goods are usually hauled in bulk, and usually are less than car lots.

The railroads affected by the order are:

Class "A" roads: Alabama Great Southern, Atlanta, Birmingham & Coast, Atlantic Coast Line, Atlanta & West Point, Central of Georgia, Chattooga & Western, Carolina, Georgia railroad, Georgia Southern and Florida, Lexington Terminal Railway Company, Louisville & Nashville, Monroe Railroad Company, Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis, Seaboard Air Line and the Southern.

Class "B" roads: Bowdon Railroad Company, Central of Georgia (Tybee branch), Chattahoochee Valley Railway, the Glenville Elberton & Eastern, Flint River and Northeastern, Gainesville Midland, Georgia Ashburn, Sylvester & Camilla, Georgia & Florida, Georgia Northern, Georgia Southwest & Gulf, Greene County Railway, Hartwell Railway Company, Lake-Land Railway, Louisville & Wadley, Macon, Dublin & Savannah, Milledgeville & Savannah, Marietta & Sandersville railway, Savannah & Atlanta, Savannah & Statesboro, Shearwood railway, South Georgia railway, Statesboro & Northern, Sylvania Central, Talbotton railway, Tallulah Falls railway, Tennessee, Alabama & Georgia, Wadley Southern, Washington & Lenoirville, and the Wrightsville & Tennille railroad.

All were represented in the injunction petition except the following, which did not protest the rate cut: Chattahoochee Valley Railway, the South Georgia railway, Tennessee, Alabama & Georgia, Milledgeville railway, Georgia, Southwestern & Gulf, Collins & Glennville and the Bowdon railway.

The petition for injunction probably will be filed in the superior court today. Certain changes will be made to make it conform to state court procedure. Otherwise it will be substantially the same as the one filed in the federal court.

Laurance Rockefeller, Mary French Wedded at Bride's Home in Vermont

WOODSTOCK, Vt., Aug. 15.—(AP)—Two of America's most distinguished families were united today when Miss Mary French, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John French, of Greenwich, Conn., and New York, became the bride of Laurance Spelman Rockefeller Jr., son of John D. Rockefeller Jr. and grandson of the founder of the Standard Oil empire.

The wedding took place in the presence of more than 300 guests who filled the quaint Congregational church, simply decorated with green ferns. Rev. Herbert Hines officiated. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Elizabeth French, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Alice Babst, of Greenwich, Conn., and Louisa Munroe, of New York.

Nelson A. Rockefeller, brother of the groom, served as best man. The ushers were Jent D. Rockefeller III and Winthrop Rockefeller, two other brothers; David M. Milton, a brother-in-law, and G. Victor Davis, of St. Louis.

B. P. W. C. Delegates Meet in Blue Ridge

BLUE RIDGE, N. C., Aug. 15.—(AP)—More than 5,000 members of Business and Professional Women's Clubs in nine southern states are expected here tomorrow for the opening of a three-day conference.

Among those on the program for addresses are Mrs. Endora Ramsey Richardson, of Richmond, Va.; Miss Charles O. Williams, of Washington; Mrs. Josephine White Bacon, of Waynesboro, Va.; Miss Nora Ross, Savannah, Ga.; Miss Mae Reynolds, of Raleigh, and Mrs. Emily Kneubuhl, of New York, national executive secretary.

States to be represented at the conference include North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, District of Columbia, Florida, Mississippi, Tennessee and Virginia.

Miss Nettie E. Brodgen, of Greensboro, is conference chairman and Miss Virginia Harmon, Nashville, Tenn., hostess.

LAST SERVICES TODAY FOR JOE G. STEWART

Funeral services for Joe G. Stewart, art, veteran Atlanta theater man, who died Tuesday night at Grady hospital from injuries received when he leaped from the third floor of the Gould building Tuesday, will be conducted at 9:30 o'clock this morning from the Sacred Heart church. The Rev. Father Edward P. McGrath will officiate and burial will be in Greenwood cemetery.

Mr. Stewart jumped from the building near Five Points while depressed. He had been in ill health for a number of years and had submitted to more than 100 surgical operations in an effort to regain his health.

He was a well-known figure in the legitimate theater field in Atlanta, having been attached to the old Grand Opera House in various capacities for a number of years. With the decline of stage presentations in Atlanta, Mr. Stewart went into the plumbing supply business here. Ill health had dogged him for more than five years.

Cuba Waits Batista's Reply To Saenz Duel Challenge

HAVANA, Aug. 15.—(AP)—All Cuba, its interest aroused by the prospect of a duel between two of its most prominent citizens, watched today every development of the controversy between Joaquin Martinez Saenz, former secretary of the treasury, and Colonel Fulgencio Batista, commander-in-chief of the Cuban army.

Saenz challenged the military leader to fight on the field of honor, because of a deep-seated difference between them.

The nation awaited eagerly for Batista to reply to the challenge. No word came from him today.

The difference in the characters of the principals of the dispute lent color to the prospective battle. Saenz is a son, a scholar of politics, law and finance. Batista is a rough-and-ready country boy whose energy and revolutionary fervor lifted him overnight from the post of obscure drill sergeant to military chief of the state.

In a statement bristling with defiance Saenz offered to meet Batista "any place except here, where I might suffer the consequences of your protection, as so many A. B. C. (senator, political society) members have."

Nothing since the downfall of President Gerardo Machado a year ago has stirred the people of Cuba more than the dispute between the two men who stood side by side in the A. B. C. in the early days of the anti-

U. S. FORCE TO COMBAT SHIPMENTS OF LIQUOR

The old Reed "bone-dry" amendment and the Webb-Kenyon act, which prohibit the shipment of liquor into dry states, are still in effect and will be enforced by the sixth district alcohol tax collecting unit, Robert E. Tuttle, district administrator, said Wednesday.

He would not say definitely whether or not his unit would hold up shipments of beer into Georgia, but said the two acts would be enforced. He added, however, that his unit was primarily interested in the curbing of the manufacture and transportation of non-tax-paid liquor.

The force is opening quarters in the Hurt building and now has 30 investigators. These will be added to probably in January, Tuttle said. Applicants must apply to the civil service for examination.

SINCLAIR H-C GASOLINE

The bride wore her mother's satin wedding dress with panels of Venetian point lace. Her attendants were dressed in apricot chiffon and large picture hats of the same color, trimmed with darker velvet.

Mrs. French, mother of the bride, was dressed in a gray chiffon gown and wore a gray broad-brimmed straw hat. Mrs. Rockefeller, the groom's mother, wore a pale blue crepe marquis gown with a dark blue hat with a pale feather.

The ceremony was followed by a large reception at "The Hills," ancestral home of the old Vermont family. Billings, from which the bride is descended on her mother's side. At the wedding and reception were many prominent in social and other affairs, among them virtually the whole Rockefeller clan, headed by Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller Jr.

The bride is a graduate of Rosemary Hall and attended Vassar for two years before taking up sculpture at the Students' Art League in New York. Mr. Rockefeller is a graduate of Princeton, class of '32.

GILLIAM FAVORS BUS, TRUCK TAXES

Candidate, at Waycross, Proposes License for Motor Lines.

WAYCROSS, Ga., Aug. 15.—(P)—Ed A. Gilliam, candidate for governor, speaking here today to a political audience, said no community in the state had suffered more than Waycross from the "damage done the railroads and buses and trucks carrying passengers for hire" over the highways.

"Do not get the idea that I am out making a special plea for the railroads," Gilliam said. "I own no railroad stock or railroad bond. I have never worked a day for a railroad. I have no relatives who work for railroads."

"The railroads pay more taxes in Georgia than any other class of property except real estate and if we allow the cut-throat competition of motor carriers for hire to drive them into the hands of the federal government, then we lose those taxes. That's where my interest comes into the picture, and it's where your interest comes into the picture."

"But even if you had no railroads in Georgia—if every mile of railroad track was taken up and hauled away, as a good many miles of it has been—and if freight and passengers were hauled exclusively by motor vehicles, what would you then consider would be a fair basis of taxation for motor carriers for hire?"

"The officers for hire contributed nothing to the cost of our highway system. They are pre-empting the highways for commercial railroads into bankruptcy."

Gilliam said he proposed to make motor lines pay not less than $250 per vehicle per year for the privilege of operating and then a tax of 30 per cent on their gross receipts, the money to go into the general state fund.

He left here to speak Thursday morning at Blackshear at 11 o'clock and Thursday afternoon at Brunswick at 4 o'clock.

JUNIOR COLLEGE FACES CURRICULUM CHANGES

ATHENS, Ga., Aug. 15.—(P)—A new curriculum for junior college work in all units of the University System of Georgia, which is expected to give students who leave college at the end of two years, a conception of civilization as a whole, will be installed the first quarter of the coming college year.

The new curriculum will revolutionize the teaching of the sciences and social sciences. It discards the teaching of each branch of science as a separate subject and will give instead, an integrated picture of the field to the beginner.

In addition, students will enter upon their studies under a plan looked upon as the first step toward transforming what has been an autocratic into a democratic system of administrative control.

Chancellor Philip W. Elmer explained the change in curriculum at a recent meeting of the university council, as intended to introduce young students to the various fields of knowledge, not merely for the purpose of factual accumulation, but also that they might "begin to think about life and form some happy philosophy about their place and part in it."

CAMPMEETING OPENS NEAR LAWRENCEVILLE

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga., Aug. 15.—(P)—The annual camp meeting opened Monday night at the century-old camp ground, near Lawrenceville. The one-hundredth anniversary of this place was celebrated two years ago.

The grounds were used during the War Between the States for the training of Confederate soldiers, a little later the buildings were burned and rebuilt. The land, a 50-acre tract, was donated for camp ground purposes by five of the pioneer citizens of Gwinnett county.

Presiding Elder Ben Smith, of the Gainesville district, and Rev. Nath Thompson of Cartersville, and Rev. W. W. Cash, of the local church, will do the preaching.

POLITICS IS TABOOED BY UNION AT NEWNAN

NEWNAN, Ga., Aug. 15.—(P)—The local textile union, meeting last night with some 300 members present, took a hands-off stand in regard to the governor's race. No reference was made to the race.

Ellis G. Arnall, speaker pro tem, of the statehouse of representatives; Judge W. L. Stallings, Stanford Arnold and William Y. Atkinson all gave short talks in which they lauded the Roosevelt administration and the president's policies.

Macon Jeweler Owns 300-Year-Old Watch

MACON, Ga., Aug. 15.—(P)—From the pocket of an elegant gentleman of merry England's renaissance, a bronze watch has found its way to the shop of E. J. Baughcum, Macon jeweler and stonemason.

An inner case of the watch is inscribed "Benjamin Taylor, London, 1802." The face bears three solid gold hands.

Baughcum found the watch in a lot of old gold he bought for shipment to the United States mint.

ATLANTA MAN HEADS BRICK STORE BODY

OXFORD, Ga., Aug. 15.—The homecoming of the former residents of the Brick Store community was held at Mount Pleasant church, with E. L. Paine presiding. G. C. Adams, commissioner of agriculture, gave the welcome address and the history of the church was given by Iverton L. Graves, of Lynchburg, Va. Orlean, who spoke included Henry Branham, Fletcher Knox, R. L. Paine, Ike Hay, and J. Whitehead, of Greenville.

S. C. Miss Sarah Adams performed at the piano and a reading was given by Miss Emily Spivy. Rev. J. E. Godfrey, pastor, gave the invocation. An organization named the Brick Store Community Association was formed to meet annually and Fletcher Knox, of Atlanta, was named president; R. L. Gibson, of Brick Store, vice president; Mrs. L. A. Patrick, of Brick Store, secretary.

TRIP TO WASHINGTON DENIED BY SCOVELLE

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Aug. 15.—(P)—Edwin P. Scoville says in a letter that no collection was taken by the state to send him to Washington but a collection was taken to send a representative who is to be selected at a later date.

Referring to the report of the meeting which discussed FERA expenditures, Scoville said:

"There was no collection taken to send the writer to Washington, D. C., but there was a collection from these poor people to send a representative to Washington, D. C., this man to be selected at a later date."

"The writer did not say that there was $400 overhead to every $150 expended for the needy but did say that the overhead was greater than the expenditures for direct relief and many weeks much greater than the pay roll."

JUNIOR ORDER BODIES INSTALL NEW OFFICERS

MACON, Ga., Aug. 15.—(P)—After installing their newly elected officers, the Georgia council, Junior Order of United American Mechanics, and auxiliary, the Daughters of America, concluded their two-day convention at noon today.

E. A. Llewellyn, Cincinnati, past national councillor, installed the Junior officers, with W. C. Munsh, of Macon, as councillor. An address was made by Dr. John S. Wilder, of the Cavalry Baptist church, of Savannah.

The revised regulations were referred to the rules committee, which will submit them to the general assembly at the 1935 convention to be held in Savannah.

The Daughters' officers were installed by Mrs. Winnie Goodwin, of Savannah, national deputy. Brief addresses were made by Mrs. Hester Runner, of Louisville, Ky., national councillor; Albert Bessong, Cincinnati, national secretary of the benefit department; and Mrs. Marie Towles, Nashville, Tenn., who is national vice councillor.

MRS. TEMPLE BLOCKER.
COLUMBUS, Ga., Aug. 15.—Funeral services for Mrs. Temple Blocker, wife of J. J. Blocker, and well-known Columbus woman, who died Tuesday morning at a private sanitarium here, were held Wednesday afternoon from the New Prospect church. Interment was in the church cemetery.

Mrs. Blocker was born March 30, 1908, being the daughter of B. F. and Temple Ann Pate Bowman. She had lived in Columbus for the past eight years.

Resides her husband, J. J. Blocker, she is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Bowman, of Columbus, and four brothers, W. H. Bowman, R. M. Bowman, Fred Bowman and George Bowman, all of Columbus.

JOE ALLEN SCOTT.
COLUMBUS, Ga., Aug. 15.—Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon for Joe Allen Scott, 16, who died Tuesday morning at the city hospital after a three-week illness.

He was a member of the St. Mark Methodist church and the Rev. W. B. Chescheir, pastor of the Hamp Stevens Memorial church, assisted by the Rev. Ralph Porterfield, pastor of the St. Mark church, officiated.

Mrs. Annie Coyle.
ATHENS, Ga., Aug. 15.—Mrs. Annie Coyle, 64, died here today after an illness of three days. Funeral services will be held Thursday at 4 o'clock from the graveside in the Winterville cemetery. Rev. William M. Cole, pastor of the Winterville Baptist church, of which she was a member and an active worker, will officiate.

Mrs. Coyle was well known in Athens and throughout the county. She had lived in Winterville for the past 43 years. She was born in Thomson where she lived for 21 years.

She is survived by her husband, Dr. Frank W. Coyle; four children, Mrs. A. Foster, For Gaines; Mrs. F. V. O'Farrell, Atlanta; Mrs. C. H. Baggert, Waycross; Mrs. B. F. Eubank, Lawrenceville; three sons, T. P. Coyle, Marietta; W. V. Coyle, Tampa; J. M. Coyle, Babely.

Keep Baby's Bowels Open With Teethina

Most baby ills originate in the intestinal tract, especially at teething time when the little stomach and bowels are frequently upset. When baby suffers from temporary constipation, gas, occasional diarrhoea, indigestion or colic; when such ills are caused by gaseous irritation, excessive acidity or improper feeding; use Teethina, a preparation especially formulated to correct these conditions. ## PITTMAN PRAISES F.D.R. AND HARTWELL

Candidate for Governor, in Speech Promises Cooperation With "New Deal."

HARTWELL, Ga., Aug. 15.—Judge Claude Pittman said in a political speech here today that Georgia farmers have Governor Talmadge's "number in this campaign" and that the governor was "in for a bad awakening on September 12" if he thought he was "more popular" in Georgia than President Roosevelt.

"Eugene Talmadge calls himself the friend of the farmer and working man," the Cartersville jurist said, "but his official record proves beyond the shadow of a doubt that he is the greatest obstructionist in the south, except Huey Long, against the president's magnificent effort to help the masses of the people."

Saying Roosevelt had done more for the common people of the nation and the state than any president in 50 years, Judge Pittman promised to support the president's recovery program and "co-operate with him in his struggle to give the common people a square deal."

The judge said the only issue in the present campaign was "whether or not the money of Talmadge and his campaign advisers can corrupt the voters in a majority of the Georgia counties."

Pittman said he was not in the running "if the governorship is to go to the highest bidder."

"But I have travelled all over Georgia," he continued, "and I am convinced that with all their money, with all their promises of political favors, they can never get the people of Georgia to sanction the Talmadge dictatorship, going hand in hand with corruption."

Pittman said he would ask for a restriction of the governor's pardoning power, the creation of a state patrol, strict enforcement of laws and repeal of laws that a majority of the people are not willing to enforce and co-operation between state and county governments and between the three branches of the state government.

Pittman charged that Governor Talmadge "called the CCC boys huns and loafers and no matter how hard he tries to deny that statement, he can't convince the people of Georgia, for more than 200 American Legionnaires heard him say it at a luncheon in Atlanta."

"He was even talking over the radio at the time, so his denial is all the more ridiculous."

Charging Governor Talmadge "forgot the president every step of the way," Pittman said Hart county farmers had received more than $181,000 in federal funds from the Roosevelt farm relief program. He told farmers in his audience that Talmadge "forgot the seed loans that made it possible for you to make a crop this year."

Pittman charged that the governor "ridiculed the Broadhead bill and every other measure intended to stabilize the price of cotton at a level that would give you a decent profit."

Courthouse Yard Filled.
The crowd began gathering early in the morning, and when the candidate arrived here from Cornelia, where he spoke Tuesday night, the courthouse yard was filled.

Judge Pittman spoke from an especially erected platform. He was introduced by Broadus Zellars, former legislator and state senator, who declared that "Judge Pittman is offering a platform designed to benefit the common people of Georgia, and a program that is in harmony with the program of the great president of the United States, Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Mrs. Zellars read a letter from the Rev. Guy M. Anderson, pastor of the Baptist church in Cartersville, and a native of Hart county, describing Judge Pittman as "a Christian gentleman, and a man who holds the love and respect of his neighbors in Bartow county."

The meeting was presided over by W. R. McMullan, a prominent Hart county farmer.

Following the address here, Judge Pittman left en route to Jefferson, where he was to make the second address of the day.

Swinging again into south Georgia for five speeches in two days, Judge Pittman will speak at Dawson at 11 o'clock Thursday morning, at Ellaville at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon, and Friday will go to Wrightsville, Hawkinsville and Fort Valley.

Judge Pittman will speak at 11 o'clock Saturday morning at a huge rally at Winder, and will address another crowd in Marietta at 3:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

PITTMAN IS WELCOMED BY CROWD AT JEFFERSON

JEFFERSON, Ga., Aug. 15.—A large crowd of enthusiasts greeted Judge Claude Pittman when he spoke in Jefferson this afternoon at a meeting arranged under the direction of Mayor George W. Westmoreland.

Introducing Judge Pittman at this city was Morgan Nix, distinguished citizen and father of Abit Nix. He characterized the candidate as "a Christian gentleman who was raised in the hills and who, through perseverance and high ideals won through many obstacles."

"Claude Pittman," declared Mr. Nix, "is a man who believes in Franklin D. Roosevelt, the greatest president this nation has ever had; the president who has done more to help the poor man than any other in the history of this country."

TOM LINDER SPEAKS IN PAULDING COUNTY

DALLAS, Ga., Aug. 15.—Tom Linder, of Jeff Davis county, former secretary to Governor Talmadge, spoke today before several hundred people in the Paulding county courthouse at the noon recess of superior court.

Linder again declared that he is the only farmer in the race, and charged that his opponents are either "agriculturalists" or "book-farmers."

"The people of Georgia," he declared, "cannot afford to have a man at the head of the department of agriculture who is not an experienced dirt farmer and who does not know from actual experience the many problems and privations of the farm."

Linder speaks tomorrow at Fayetteville and McDonough, and Friday at Sparta and Greensboro.

County Line Singing. DOUGLASSVILLE, Ga., Aug. 15.—

Library Elects Officers.
BARNESVILLE, Ga., Aug. 15.—The board of trustees of the Carnegie library of Barnesville today re-elected two members for terms of three years: Mrs. E. L. Coleman, who has served as secretary for 12 years, and Mrs. Augusta Lambdin. Mrs. J. E. Bush was re-elected librarian, with Mrs. Lambdin assistant.

Lumber Discussed.
COLUMBUS, Ga., Aug. 15.—Conditions in the lumber industry, generally conceded to have not shown the improvement hoped for under the NRA, were discussed at length at the meeting of the Georgia-Alabama Roofers' Manufacturers' Association, in Columbus today.

Women to Form Club.
SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 15.—Plans are already under way for calling a meeting of women in Savannah to organize a women's democratic club. This idea was suggested at the meeting of women democrats of the state here Monday and it is to be carried out.

Young Baptists To Meet.
WASHINGTON, Ga., Aug. 15.—The first annual conference of the young people of the Augusta presbytery will be a two-day session at Union Point, beginning August 21, according to the Rev. G. McInnis, pastor of Washington Presbyterian church, who, as member of the faculty, will teach Bible. Dr. James McD. Richards, president of Columbia Theological Seminary, will be the principal speaker at the conference. Miss Charlotte Persinger, of religious education, is a prominent member of the faculty and conference director.

Cartersville Firm Bought.
CARTERSVILLE, Ga., Aug. 15.—James F. Long announces the purchase of the interest of W. M. Cummings in a local furniture business, and in future it will be known as the Long Furniture Company. Mr. Cummings becomes sole owner of a similar business in Rockmart.

Macon to Can Beef.
MACON, Ga., Aug. 15.—Work for 800 persons on relief rolls will begin around September 1 when, it is predicted, the government plant for canning cattle will begin in the T & T packing plant here, it was reported.

at ERA headquarters today. Up to date there have been 700 heads of cattle shipped into Bibb county from the drought-stricken area in the west. They have been sent to farmers with meadow pasture land to get in shape before they are slaughtered, John C. Booth, ERA district supervisor said.

Dawson Court Ends.
DAWSONVILLE, Ga., Aug. 15.—Dawson county superior court, after a week's session, has closed. The civil docket required two days, the remainder of the time being taken up with criminal cases. Judge P. B. Gaillard presided with Solicitor-General McMillan looking after the state's interest.

McElvany-Born Reunion.
ACWORTH, Ga., Aug. 15.—McElvany and Born families will hold their annual reunion August 26 at the old J. S. McElvany home, near Bay Creek in Gwinnett county. Speaking and singing will be the special features of the day. Basket dinner will be served at noon.

Columbus Doctor Resigns.
COLUMBUS, Ga., Aug. 15.—(P)—Dr. William E. Mayher, city physician for the past several years, yesterday tendered his resignation to City Manager Marshall Morton in order that he might be free to enter private practice. The city commission has not yet acted upon the resignation, which Dr. Mayher wishes to become effective immediately upon the selection of a successor.

GEORGIAN IS SOUGHT
IN BLUFFTON SLAYING
CENTER, Ala., Aug. 15.—(P)—Officers today sought C. B. Smith, 40, on charges of slaying John Berry, 50, of Cedartown, Ga., in a difficulty near Bluffton, late last night.

Officers had not been informed of full details of the slaying, but launched a widespread search for Smith, who fled the scene immediately.

Smith and a brother, officers said, were convicted a number of years ago in the slaying of a man in Folk county, Georgia. Smith served a short sentence in the case, and his brother, who was given a life term, escaped.

Smith is the son of "Bell Tree" Smith, Cherokee county man who was credited with killing a dozen men before he was hanged at the gallows of a Cleburne county youth in the early nineties.

COLUMBUS MILL OPENS WITH STRIKE SETTLED

35 Workers, Operating One Shift, Return to Machines.

COLUMBUS, Ga., Aug. 15.—(P)—A strike of employees at the Georgia Webbing and Tape Company that led to the death of one man in a fight between workers and pickets last Friday, ended officially at 6 a. m. today when 35 strikers returned to work.

The trouble was ended through the efforts of federal mediators who obtained an agreement whereby the company will recognize the union and collective bargaining.

Only employees on the "early shift" returned to work today. Others will be put on later.

William Reuben Sanders, a textile worker not employed by the webbing and tape company, was killed last week when a workers attempted to drive his automobile through the picket line. Three men are being held in jail in connection with the shooting.

SAVANNAH STREET CARS APPEAR TO BE DOOMED

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 15.—It looks as if the street railway tracks of Savannah are doomed just as are those in Macon, and other cities in Georgia. The Savannah Electric & Power Company, which has been running a series of buses as a transportation experiment, has announced that it has bought 10 new buses and will install them on its principal transportation lines.

They are smaller than the buses originally bought and which have been used for the past few years. The street car mileage in Savannah is greatly reduced from what it once was. In the city proper there are two belt lines and no line out Habersham street. There is still a trolley line to Isle of Hope, but much suburban trackage has been torn up and supplanted by buses. It is expected other tracks will also go. There are those who believe travel by street car is going to go entirely into the discard in Savannah.

"FAMOUS FRIENDSHIPS"

Lafayette and Prichet

● The freedom of these United States is, to a great extent, traceable to a friendship: When Lafayette came to aid America it was because a boyhood friend, Prichet, through constant correspondence had drawn the thoughts of the young marquis to Virginia and inclined him to favor the cause of the Colonies.

LAFAYETTE, made a major general, conferred a colonelcy upon his friend. With the war won, Lafayette, about to return to France, tried to persuade Prichet to return with him. Colonel Prichet declined, returned to his plantation, died while still a young man.

LAFAYETTE later returned to America. His grief in the loss of his friend inspired his immortal letter "l'ami de mon coeur," a beautifully recorded remembrance of their friendship.

DIXIE'S SALVATION SEEN IN NEW DEAL

Tugwell Praises Southerners for Showing Way to Whole Nation.

CLEMSON COLLEGE, S. C., Aug. 15.—(AP)—Rexford G. Tugwell said today that "under the New Deal the south is coming gradually into its own again as the free and equal partner of the north and west in developing our national future along new and co-operative lines."

Praising the south for its "readiness to co-operate" as shown in the Bankhead cotton control bill, the undersecretary of agriculture spoke at this college in the home state of Senator E. D. "Cotton Ed" Smith, who led the senate fight against his nomination.

Pointed Way.

Saying the south, under the AAA and NRA, pointed the way to the whole nation, he declared: "We in the north and our fellow farmers in the west are learning what the south evidently learned before we did, that the cost of unplanned production is prohibitive in terms of decency and human happiness and that the way to stop, paying that price is by co-operation."

Future cotton policies must be decided by the south itself, Tugwell said. He suggested tariff management to "enable the world to pay for the cotton it buys from the south."

Permanent Policy Needed.

The temporary acreage reduction programs must be transformed into some permanent policy, he asserted, and the decision must be made in time to influence 1935 spring planting.

As to the part the south may play in the world market for the future, Tugwell said "I doubt if you will care to enter into world competition again for six-cent cotton," adding "but that is a problem for the future."

With the world supply of cotton now near normal proportions, the undersecretary said the American grower must face the "clearcut decision" of constructing a new control plan to determine "the annual production which we can expect to dispose of at home and abroad, without disastrously depressing prices."

Decision Delayed.

"We were able to avoid making a clear-cut decision on this point during the last two years," he said, "because we had a surplus sufficient to retain our control of the world market."

"This surplus gave us a breathing spell during which we could reorganize our production without worrying about foreign competition because the existence of a sufficient amount of surplus down to a point which discouraged our competitors."

"I recognize," Tugwell said, "that the people of the south abhor the thought of ever surrendering dominance in the world's markets."

He added that "many factors are favorable to a continuation of the production of a sufficient amount to supply domestic needs and to export more than half the crop."

Will Need Cotton.

"It is apparent that the world will always need American cotton, even if foreign areas should be greatly expanded," he said. "Its character and quality are such, particularly in some of the shorter staple grades, that it is doubtful whether other countries can soon find practical substitutes."

Tugwell declared the question of production was important in determining whether the south shall maintain its dominance of the world cotton market, but said consideration also must be given to the quality of the fiber.

He said that the adjustment in production has been achieved, the south must decide whether part of the price it must pay for continued domination of the world's cotton trade must not also include such a management of the tariff as will enable the world to pay for the cotton which it buys from the south.

The undersecretary declared "it is a very serious choice and one which calls for the highest sort of statesmanship. Unrestricted competitive production can only bring economic misery and social unrest unless it is accompanied by a different sort of management of our economic foreign relations."

Voluntary cotton control can give the south a higher standard of living and greater social stability, provided this control is integrated to a national policy conceived in the interest of all sections of this country and all vital lines of economic endeavor.

'TALKING SICKNESS' DRAINING ENERGY OF TRUCK DRIVER

MT. GILEAD, Ohio, Aug. 15.—(AP)—Alternately moping, sobbing and shouting, a 32-year-old truck driver, Donald Campbell, today began his tenth day in the grip of "talking sickness," an ailment akin to the silent sleeping sickness.

He is lying in the home of his father, Blain Campbell, near here, steadily growing weaker from the drain on his nervous energy.

Dr. C. S. Jackson, who terms his sickness a form of encephalitis, reports the patient remains rational. The disease is believed to result from an infection of the encephalon, or lower part of the brain, but Campbell shows no evidence of mental derangement.

In his rambling monolog, said Dr. Jackson, he passes from an answer to a description of a humorous experience, laughing heartily; then he becomes morose, and his words are spaced by sobs.

Boyhood exploits are mentioned along with worried statements about his job with a Columbus, Ohio, trucking company, and then the patient directs a few words to his wife and small daughter. Worry over his job was said by a physician to have brought on Campbell's illness.

The man has had only five hours sleep since the onset of the disease. Two packs will be used on the back of his head in an effort to induce rest and sleep.

He eats regularly but lightly. Never very strong or large, he may be dangerously weakened by the end of the week, said the physician.

HITLER AID INJURED IN AUTOMOBILE CRASH

OBER SALZBERG, Germany, Aug. 15.—(AP)—Physicians this morning said that Hermann Wilhelm Goering, injured in an automobile accident, was not hurt internally.

An operation consequently, will not be necessary, they said. It was predicted he would recover fully in 8 or 10 days.

HAWAII SUGAR QUOTA TO REMAIN UNCHANGED

PUBLISHERS SEE
LITTLE WAR PERIL

U. S. Would Avoid European Conflict, Americans Declare in Rome.

ROME, Aug. 15.—(AP)—The possibility that the United States might become involved in another European war was discounted by American publishers and officials who are here as guests of the Italian government.

Clark Howell, a publisher, and chairman of President Roosevelt's federal aviation commission, at a luncheon given by American press correspondents, said another European war would find the United States on the outside and determined to stay there.

Howell's statement was echoed by Victor H. Hanson, Birmingham, Ala., publisher. Hanson said America is so engrossed in domestic achievements that she has little time for concern about possible wars. He emphasized the American people's firm will for peace.

Hanson added that as a member of the party which had been invited here to view Italian progress he had been greatly and favorably impressed. He has been studying conditions as an educator as well as a publisher in view of his position of vice president of the Birmingham board of public instruction.

Erskine Ramsey, of Birmingham, said he was intensely interested in Italian methods of instruction and the nation's efforts to spread education among rural masses.

C. B. Glenn, superintendent of the Birmingham city schools, after discussing the educational phases of the visit, emphasized the value of the cooperation being given by educators, administration and educators. He said the president's "brain trust" deserves great credit for its accomplishments in America's battle for prosperity.

Judge William Huggins, publisher of the Houston Chronicle, said the nature of public response is the deciding factor in determining the success of new enterprises anywhere. He said that in the present situation the press, influencing public response, is meeting its highest responsibilities.

Joseph Taylor, editor of the Dallas News, expressed admiration for the achievements of ancient, pagan Rome, of which he has made an exhaustive study. The organization and construction of the government of ancient Rome is worthy of attention through the ages, he declared.

The party, planning to remain here a week, will leave Rome Saturday.

They will travel to other Italian cities before returning to the United States.

Howell will go to Paris to continue his study of European aviation as head of the president's commission.

INVENTORS SEE
WORKLESS WORLD
IN NEAR FUTURE

CINCINNATI, Aug. 15.—(AP)—An almost workless world within 15 years—perhaps even sooner—could be the "push-button" era—is the inventors' dream.

All the work, says Albert Burns, of Oakland, Cal., will be done in an infinitesimal fraction of the time now required, machinery turning the trick.

Burns is the grand impresario of invention, president of the National Inventors' Congress, meeting here. The congress has as its idea the finding of markets for those who think up something to make man's burden lighter.

The trouble is, he muses, that most of them want a million dollars—or nothing—for their devices. Still others have ideas but no money to make them realities. That's why the convention will discuss, among other things, proposals to have the federal government finance invention and discovery.

Among inventions presented to the convention were a bathing suit made of wood shavings; an automobile device that combines automatic starter, automatic choke, and supercharger; a cow's tail holder to protect modern milkmaids from smacks from Bossy's tail.

On the practical side were mid-ocean artificial islands for airplane landing fields, printing presses, high-powered and clean grease-guns, and such farm machinery as hay-cutters.

FAIRBANKS SILENT
ON RECONCILIATION
AND MARY PICKFORD

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—(AP)—Since and debauched as ever, Douglas Fairbanks came home today after 14 months' sojourn abroad steadfast in his refusal to discuss a possible reconciliation with "America's Sweetheart," Mary Pickford.

To innumerable questions aboard the liner Rex, he parried with: "My private life is my own. I will not discuss it."

Whether about Miss Pickford or about Lady Sylvia Ashley, the London society matron with whose name his was frequently coupled, the attitude of the movie actor was one of complete detachment.

A shrug of the shoulders, a quick smile on a deeply-tanned face, and then the inevitable:

"Please, please . . . there is nothing I can say."

It was explained to Fairbanks that Joseph M. Schenck, president of United Artists, and his wife, on the voyage, had indicated in Europe before the Rex sailed, that there might be a reconciliation with Miss Pickford.

"He had no right," Fairbanks said, "to speak for me without authority."

Schenck—whose engagement to Merle Oberon, an actress, was announced abroad—denied making such a statement.

Schenck likewise was noncommittal about his marriage plans.

BOY OF 14 LEADS
HIGH SCHOOL BAND
IN COUNTERFEITING

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Aug. 15.—(AP)—A 14-year-old boy, called by federal agents "America's youngest counterfeiter," and his youthful companions must answer to charges of counterfeiting.

The boy, Clinton Hayes, was the alleged leader of a band of high school boys which held secret meetings in the basement of an old church. Treasury department agents said the youths made crude quarters and nickels from babbit and pewter, using knowledge gained in science classes and molds made in the high school foundry.

Young Hayes, arraigned before United States Commissioner R. M. Mountcastle, heard, Edward Cleveland, 14, tell of their "mint" in a garage at the rear of Hayes' home where neighbors said they had thought the boys were putting with chemistry. The Cleveland boy's mother brought him before the commissioner to see that he turned state's evidence.

Young Cleveland told how he helped to make nickels and said the most successful mold was fashioned in the foundry training room at West High school.

THE BAR GETS BUSY.

Announcement of the appointment of a new investigator for the grievance committee of the Atlanta Bar Association, together with the personnel of the committee, appears in the news columns of this issue. A study of the membership of the committee reveals a well-rounded group, representing a true cross-section of the Atlanta bar.

The association has taken a wise and constructive step in determining to pay increased attention to the vital importance of assuring that all the members of the legal fraternity in the community conduct themselves in keeping with the highest ethics of the profession. It is surprisingly true that lawyers, generally, have not been as active in punishing other lawyers for misconduct as has been the case with other professions.

Lately members of the bar, the Georgia Bar Association and local associations, true to the highest standards of their profession, have begun to show concern over an apparently definite loss of public confidence in lawyers generally.

Lawyers are not responsible for many of the things for which they are criticized by unthoughtful or ignorant people. It remains, however, that some conditions have come into existence within the profession which the failure of lawyers to correct has brought regrettable criticism upon the entire bar.

Especially is this true in the failure of the members of the bar to use the proper care in seeing to it that their high calling is protected from abuses resulting from misconduct on the part of unscrupulous lawyers. Because of the peculiar relation lawyers bear to the public, and the large part they play in the administration of public affairs and of justice, as well as in the making of laws and the confidential relation prevailing between attorney and client, they, as a profession, must see that the public is not imposed upon by unscrupulous men, masquerading under the name of "lawyer."

Unfortunately, the bar has been derelict in the observation of this high duty. There have been spasmodic efforts on the part of all organizations of lawyers to eliminate this evil and to punish those lawyers who have by their conduct caused forfeiture of public confidence in the bar as a whole, but these efforts have not been as sustained nor as thorough as they should have been.

Generally it is found that lawyers guilty of professional misconduct are not members of bar associations, hence the task of properly disciplining them has been made more difficult. Another stumbling block has been that some members of the bar have been prone to be guided by their consideration for another member, rather than their duty to the public and to their profession generally, and have refused to take the claim against a lawyer guilty of misconduct.

The state bar association is now advocating incorporation of the bar, which would greatly facilitate handling complaints and would undoubtedly make it far more simple to eliminate such abuses as exist within the bar. Under such an act all lawyers who practice law would necessarily belong to the state incorporated bar, whereas now only a very small percentage are members of the bar association.

The Atlanta Bar Association is entitled to the appreciation of the public for having secured, at its own expense, the services of an able investigator to deal with complaints against members of the association and other lawyers. In so doing they have rendered a valuable public service. There is posted in the Fulton county courthouse a full roster of the members of the Atlanta Bar Association. The people of Atlanta should acquaint themselves with this list in order that the identity of the lawyers participating in the effort to improve the standards of the bar may be generally known.

BORAH ERUPTS AGAIN.

The country has become somewhat accustomed to the frequent eruptions of Senator Borah, viewing them generally with forbearance as being this able American's method of "blowing off steam," but the Idaho senator is apt to discover in the reaction to his recent attack on the federal crop restriction program that it is never wise to talk without a reasonable background of fact.

Senator Borah is quoted as denouncing the administration crop program on the ground that it joins "with the chinch bugs, the boll weevil, the locusts, the storms and the drought in making scarce the things for which millions are nightly praying."

Surely the senator knows that the reduced production of agricultural commodities has not reduced food surpluses to a point where there is any lack of food for every man, woman and child in the United States. If it were possible overnight to supply Senator Borah's millions with the "things for which they are nightly praying," there is enough of every basic commodity to go around.

The senator laments that the AAA has "robbed the farmer of his judgment, his discretion, his opinion as to what was best to be done." In view of the huge surpluses that the farmer's "judgment" had brought in every agricultural product, it is surprising that so astute a statesman as Senator Borah should regret that the American farmer has been given the benefit of sound advice, and aided in following it.

The workings of the AAA have not been perfect and nobody expected them to be, the administration included. But if Senator Borah and others who see red every time the AAA is discussed really want to know whether or not it has served a good purpose, they should come to the south.

Had it not been for the cotton acreage reduction program of last summer, the holdover supply of cotton would have been increased by some 4,000,000 bales. This would have meant that cotton, instead of increasing in price from below 6 cents to 10 and above, would have dropped to 3 or 4 cents.

If that had happened the south would now be prostrate, with its agricultural interests in worse condition than ever in their history and with business and industry at a standstill. The huge contribution of this section to the buying power of the nation would have been reduced to a minimum and business in other sections would have been severely handicapped in the progress back toward normalcy.

Instead the cotton crop was cut by 25 per cent and the resultant higher prices brought immediate improvement among all classes in the south. The farmer spent his increased income with the merchants and the merchants in turn gave larger patronage to industry. The AAA is largely responsible for the increased price brought by tobacco this year and for the other major crops of the south.

There can be no reasonable ground for criticism, despite the mistakes that may have been made, of a program that has brought such results—especially when the attack is based on the farcical argument that it "robbed the farmer of his opinion as to what was best to be done."

Senator Borah is an outstanding and valuable figure in the public life of the country, but the unreasonableness of his attack on the AAA indicates that the period of unprecedented heat from which his section has suffered has had equally as devastating an effect upon his good judgment as on the crops of his fellow Idahoans.

By PIERRE VAN PAASEN

White Russians

Plot Cuckoo

The plan to dismember the federation of soviet states has advanced another step on the road toward realization with the union of half a dozen white guard Ukrainian organizations who were formerly bitter rivals. To Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, mystery man in the supreme councils of the German Nazi party, goes the credit of having brought the warring factions together. It seems only fair for having acted with such noble altruism, Germany will benefit by the reunion in that she will be allowed to exercise a protectorate over the Ukraine when Moscow's hash is finally settled. The Caucasus has been thrown in for good measure, while Georgia and Armenia are in the line to come to nothing, as said of Alabama or of Timbuctoo.

A German vice-roy will administer the "independent" Ukrainian state which exists. Of course Ukraine isn't captured yet. But for the time being a dozen ex-landed proprietors, who live in exile in Paris, London, Berlin and Warsaw, have promoted themselves to the rank of brigadier general, which is something. It reminds me of the incident that befell my friend, Joseph Brannin, who was recruiting agents for the Jewish Legion which was to go out and capture Palestine from the Turks in 1917. One day on Madison Square he had a Jewish ex-captain to Joseph and said he wanted to enlist. Joe looked at the white whiskers and said gently: "Don't you think, father, you are a little too old for this?" "Too old?" came back the man; "say, don't you fellows need any generals?"

Dividing the Bear's Hide.

At the secret congress held in Berlin on May 30 Dr. Alfred Rosenberg told the ex-nobles that they could not expect to get the Ukraine. He said that you are marching home to Russia, Hitler will be with you, he promised. "Hitler is your friend, your only friend," he added. "That's very fine. It's a pity the nobles didn't know yet what Hitler does to his friends when he gets the chance, as on June 30. The Hetman Skoropadsky thereupon made a little speech, saying so is said in the protocol of the congress, flaying the present regime in Russia. The delegates thereupon rose as one man and sat down on Hitler. With the flayed in their hands they began to divide the spoils. District governors were appointed, judges, heads of courts-martial, prosecutors, commanders of gendarmes and other such high cultural occupations were dealt out. It was a happy day.

For the information of the outside world, the story of the division of the Ukraine was a myth which rested only on faded photographs, while the usual stories of famine were rehearsed and one man came forward who said he knew a man whose grandmother had known a woman who said that she knew a man who had been offered human flesh in Poland.

No human flesh was now even available, however. So bad things were. Stalin had eaten it all, leaving the bones for Livinoff to sell to Barthou at Geneva.

And Then...

Dr. Rosenberg outlined a preliminary plan of action. To take the Ukraine away from the soviet union would deprive Moscow of her richest source of food and of her finest industry. He mentioned the Dnieper-stry with its 30 miles of new factories. "It is before all necessary to get a hold of that district," he said. "You must think they would leave Moscow those faded photographs and the famine. But no, they want Ukraine administered by Germany on the basis of the Ukrainian people. That is what is known as Realpolitik in a Russe.

CIRCULATION SLUGGISH? TAKE A BREATH.

Primitive savages and plain people whose brains have not been added by what passes as "physical culture," have been able to live more efficiently and have better endurance than wisecracking Americans generally have.

A chesty complex is unphysiological and unnatural and ought to be discarded along with the toing-out of the past generation.

The habit of costal or chest breathing is almost universally cultivated in this country handicaps all who are addicted to it.

Unless you are convinced you know more than I do about this breathing business, you are eligible to join the B. B. club. Members may take these letters to mean better breathing or busier belly, according to their alleged cultural level.

Not that we are joining the nudist movement, but just between ourselves I'm for nudism or as nearly that as we can possibly approach.

The ideal of the B. B. club is to free the diaphragm. I estimate that more than one out of five men are "well educated" persons know what, where and why the diaphragm is.

Members of the B. B. club excepted. It is due to this popular ignorance of the diaphragm that so many wise acres have had bad advice about air training in breathing.

The diaphragm happens to be the chuckling muscle. Or if you contain your chuckles it will give you a good belly laugh. The attempts of some people to air their strange ideas about the diaphragm have given me a good deal to sleep at night.

When you are fast asleep or completely anesthetized you breathe like a savage, which is to say naturally, with the diaphragm and belly, and not with the chest.

When you are on parade, showing off, putting on airs, trying to be someone else than yourself, registering false emotions, you breathe with your chest. It is part of your bad education (bad physical education) that you have learned to keep restraint on the natural activity of the diaphragm and chest after a false wrong breathing, amounts to inhibition or a drag or brake on the natural breathing. Thus, instead of enjoying the advantages of free and easy breathing, most civilized folk are handicapped by their faulty breathing.

Persons past middle age who have high blood pressure; persons who find it difficult to get to sleep at night; old feet or hot head; young women with functional difficulties; singers, persons who stutter or stammer, persons who hiccup or belch excessively, all should practice belly breathing every day. Anyone who has wasted time with "breath breathing" should learn how to breathe naturally. Instructions in the booklet "The Art of Breathing." Ask for it and enclose a dime and a stamped envelope bearing your address.

News Behind the News

BY PAUL MALLON.

CONFUSION

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—If you do not understand what the government has been doing to silver, you need not feel that you are thick-headed. The government itself has had some trouble finding out what it was doing. It took three treasury announcements over a period of a week to get the thing all straightened out. Now, however, it is thoroughly explained, and it can be fairly said that the announcement means no more than it did in the first place.

The trouble seems to have started on the inside when one treasury under-official got the idea it would not be wise to disclose that President Roosevelt had authorized a minor inflationary step in silver two months ago. He thought it might create a bad impression to let out that fact at this late date. So the insiders say, he blue-penciled it from the original nationalization announcement.

As there was no detailed official explanation of how the treasury was handling its silver, rumors started to flow immediately. Most of them were wrong.

When these rumors began to affect the government bond market, action was taken swiftly. Mr. Roosevelt's old silver order was given out. Later, an exchange on the correspondence between Mr. Morgenthau and Mr. Roosevelt was made public. All the silver cards were then presumably placed face up on the table.

They showed that the only inflationary step Mr. Roosevelt had taken on silver was in the June 14 order. It concerned only old silver held in the treasury then and not the new silver acquired since. He authorized the issuance of currency at $1.29 an ounce against that silver, and valued the reserve at $1.29 an ounce, whereas he had paid much less for it.

The inflation thus involved is exactly $33,100,000, which is merely a silver shred among the gold. It means nothing.

INTENTIONS From the face-up cards you can ascertain, however, that Mr. Roosevelt has not done the same thing with the newly acquired silver. He is issuing money against that only to the extent of the purchase price and not on the basis of the inflated price of $1.29 an ounce.

Everyone within a mile of the inside believes the president will some day use his newly acquired silver in the same way he did the old silver. But do not be misled into deducing inflation is coming from that.

The truth is the amount of silver involved is so small it just cannot affect the credit of the treasury or appreciably affect the amount of money in circulation. The maximum amount of inflation Mr. Roosevelt could get that way from silver stocks seized and the purchase of the domestic output during the first year is around $225,000,000.

He can use this silver device for real inflation only if he goes into the world market and buys all the silver in sight.

Some who know silver cannot see enough of that metal in the world to permit a major inflation even then. There are estimates that no more than 100,000,000 ounces are available for purchase by us now in India and China. Some estimates run as low as 9,000,000 ounces.

Professor Rogers now is in China looking into that situation for the administration.

GOVERNMENTS The recent experience of the government bond market may put a damper on the whole silver program. That market is most sensitive in times like these. The government has a lot of financing to do and can easily maintain the market for its financing unless the inflation talk gets out of hand.

Some shrewd observers believed that the recent brief decline was meant as a word of warning against inflation on the part of large holders of governments. At any rate, it is true that some large holders desired to "test" the market by selling, and now have repurchased.

RETIREMENT The withdrawal of Bernard Baruch, once a demagogue angel, from the stock market, being widely advertised in the inner circle there. They say he has "moved uptown," which means that he has become, you might say, a retired capitalist. (The Tammany boys spoke in the same derogatory way about Al Smith when he "moved uptown.")

After Baruch returns from Europe, his pals avow he will devote more time to the public baths in New York and Mrs. Roosevelt's homesteading than to reading the ticker tape.

NOTES There is a strong movement among republican veterans to promote Iowa's Hanford MacNider for the republican presidential nomination in '36.

One of the most astute republican leaders came back to town from a trip recently and told his friends: "As long as the government money faucet is open, you can't beat Mr. Roosevelt."

Wickliffe Shreve, the economist, says: "Inflation is like love. No two people have the same idea about it."

Mr. Hoover's forthcoming book will be an analysis of present-day problems from a restrained legal and constitutional standpoint. It will not be a direct attack on Mr. Roosevelt.

He Doesn't Take the Road to Rome If He Is Hunting Moose

By Robert Quillen

If three neighbors go to town, one to have a carburetor adjusted, one to buy a coat and one to complain of an error in his gas bill, they are all equally successful if each does the thing he set out to do.

It would be absurd to call one of them a failure because he obtained the coat he went for and failed to have his carburetor adjusted; yet that is the usual method of defining failures.

There is no arbitrary and universal standard of success. The standard is fixed by majority opinion of the time and place. In Russia the typical American success would be not only a failure but a criminal as well. And in some regions the greatest success is the murderer who has collected the largest number of human skulls.

These popular and local definitions of success serve to convey meaning, which is the purpose of all definitions, but they are often unfair to the individual.

In measuring any man's success, the only fair and accurate measuring rod is his purpose.

If you would measure your own, ask yourself the simple question: What do I desire to get out of life?

It isn't a question of what you wish for. You might wish for a million dollars, a yacht and a mansion without really desiring them at all.

Desire is a passion. The youth who desires a maid can think of nothing else. He can neither eat nor sleep. His heart is sick with yearning.

That is desire, and people who desire a thing in that way usually get it.

Fortunately, nature is consistent in fixing our limitations. We lack the ability to get a thing, we also lack the capacity to desire it. One doomed to obscurity in a village years for the local postoffice—not for the presidency.

Discover what thing it is that you truly desire from life and you will find the getting of it within your capacities.

And when you have obtained it, whether it be a seat in the senate or a rattler houseboat on a river that runs through the wilderness, you have made a success of life, for no man can do more than reach his goal.

CRITIC OF NEW DEAL

QUITS MAGAZINE POST

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 15.—(UP)—Dr. G. W. Dyer, Vanderbilt University professor of economics and critic of many aspects of the New Deal, resigned today as editor of the Southern Agriculturist, a monthly farm magazine published here.

Dr. Dyer explained that Kirk Rankin, publisher of the magazine, "has been an earnest advocate of the New

Swirl of Passion

Enlivens Bridge

OHIO, Aug. 15.—The swirl of ugly passion which marred the summer tournament of the American Bridge league at Asbury Park, N. J., may be just the thing that was needed to put bridge over as a public spectacle. There seem to have been two swirls, in fact, one when Mr. Hal Sims tapped Mr. Oswald Jacoby on the chin and another when Mr. Sims lifted him by the ear and let him drop. Up to the present writing, Mr. Jacoby has not retaliated but they may be saying that phase of the conflict for a return swirl in Madison Square Garden.

Bridge heretofore has been regarded as a sedentary sport and efforts to popularize it with the masses have not been successful. Now that brutality has been introduced, however, the game may have a future.

Bridge Experts

There has always been a certain mystery as to the reasons for bridge tournaments which are attended by comparatively few customers, most of them ham-and-egg or preliminary bridge players themselves. The professional bridge expert does not like to be reminded of the fact but there is no perceptible difference between a bridge expert and a card shark. Bridge somehow has enjoyed a high social status which is denied to poker experts. There is said to be an unwritten law inscribed in the air somewhere which forbids an expert of major league calibre from disguising himself as a novice and trimming suckers. However, this unwritten law, if any, puts a great strain on the individual bridge expert or shark. Poker experts or sharks were unable to resist the temptation to take advantage of innocent victims and financial gain and there has long been a sort of feeling that parties who played poker for a living were professional gamblers and none to be desirable socially.

Your correspondent attended a championship bridge tournament in a New York hotel a few years ago, attracted there by large coverage which was being given the bitter combat in the papers. It seemed that such an important battle should be frequented by a large and enthusiastic attendance and your correspondent was taken somewhat aback to discover that there were no more than 15 head present in the arena which was a private parlor. The silence in the room was terrific and after enduring this for some time your correspondent asked one of the leading contenders for the championship as to what was the angle.

"Oh, it is pour le sport," said the bridge expert or shark.

Don't Attempt To Kid Press

"Do not attempt to kid the press but let us come to the point at once," your correspondent said. "What is the angle and how do your bridge gladiators figure to get yours?"

The card shark changed the subject but your correspondent made further inquiries and discovered that there were several angles. There was the book angle. It develops that the two groups of experts were exploiting two schools of bridge and that the publicity was boosting the sale of the books. They explained that to their constituents. Then there was the syndicate angle. Each camp was tied up with a newspaper syndicate and was selling bridge books and papers around the country at so much per week. The winner's lectures naturally would sell better than the loser's when the tournament was over.

But the main angle was the receiving powerful publicity free of charge and it was assured that even the loser's syndicate receipts would be doubled when it was over. There were also the moving picture rights and the revenue to be derived from the cigar company, the chair-cushion company and the ash tray company for testimonials.

Chance to Boost

This was not a special tournament but it was somewhat nasty in spots as the rivalry developed and it was easy to foresee that one day the bridge sharks would allow themselves to be swept into swirls of ugly passion. They do no harm and are selling bridge books and by-products of the experts, they also attract large crowds to the tournaments after this. It would be something to the management to be able to declare to the customers before a tournament, "Boys and girls, this is going to be a grudge tournament and a swirl of ugly passion and may the best newspaper syndicate win."

Brutality has long been a characteristic of poker. The miners and steamboat men carried pistols in convenient positions and when their ugly passions were kindled the damage often was total and generally permanent. But bridge is coming on with a rush when one expert or shark naps another by the ear and lets him drop. In time the bridge expert will be as common a sight as a prizefighter and a prizefighter may be identified by his cauliflower ear, and say with pride "I got that playing bridge with Hal Sims."

Mrs. Sidney B. Whittier, wife of the plant manager of the Whittier mills at Chattahoochee, will receive $83,000 from the estate of her husband, according to appraisal papers filed in New York Wednesday.

Commander York, a retired United States navy officer, died at his home, 1102 E. 10th street, on Wednesday, November 21, 1932, leaving a net estate of $166,818. Mrs. Whittier is a daughter of the late commander's brother.

KLAN TO LAUNCH WAR AGAINST COMMUNISM

M. O. Dunning, chief of staff of the Ku Klux Klan, at the closing session Wednesday of the three-day Klondike of the Klan held in Atlanta, told more than 800 delegates from 28 states that the Klan will sponsor acts in every state legislature making it impossible for any group of individuals to function in attempts to undermine the Constitution of the United States.

Hundreds of robed members of the Klan pledged their support to the "in order that I may keep fully informed as to your work progress, I wish you would send me reports from time to time."

"I want also to express to you my deep personal interest in the Klan service you have rendered at all times since you assumed the governorship of the federal reserve board. The President's letter to Black said: "Dear Governor: I have accepted, with great reluctance, your resignation as governor of the federal reserve board, effective today as requested by you."

"And now that you are leaving Washington and returning to Atlanta, where you will be able to devote more of your time to the duties of governor of the Federal Reserve Bank there, I am glad you are undertaking a new and important additional task."

TEXTILE WORKERS SCORE NRA BOARDS

Convention Delegates Vote To Press for New Labor Party.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—(P)—The annual convention of the United Textile Workers of America today attacked the board of the NRA and voted to press for the formation of a labor party.

The convention adopted a resolution to instruct its delegates to the American Federation of Labor convention to advocate a new labor party, declaring "a new party is necessary to assure workers a square deal."

The NRA boards were attacked vigorously as "agencies and associations of employers."

The 600 delegates adopted a resolution declaring they would rely on unionization and strike activities rather than the NRA boards "unless we obtain adequate and fair representation on code authorities."

Employers Aid Charged.

The resolution charged that while the NRA had failed to eliminate unemployment and had forced the wages of skilled workers down to the minimum, it had organized employers and increased their profits several hundred per cent.

A heated debate over whether the NRA had helped or hurt labor preceded the passage of the resolution. One delegate shouted that though the right to organize is guaranteed under the NRA, strikes in Minneapolis, Toledo, and elsewhere have been over this issue. But another pointed out that while labor was "down to its lowest point" a year ago, the textile workers were now having the largest convention in their history.

Proposal Voted Down.

Earlier in the day, the convention voted down a proposal that officers of the union should withdraw from all NRA bodies. Objection to this resolution was raised on the ground that the union needed more representation on these bodies, not less.

Another verbal fight centered around whether the union should endorse the unemployment insurance bill introduced in the last congress by Representative Ernest Lundeen, farmer-laborer of Minnesota. His measure was called on as "communist" in inspiration, but the delegates finally voted in favor of the measure.

Delegates to the American Federation of Labor were instructed, in another resolution, to move for industrial rather than the present form of strikers, particularly in the automobile, steel, rubber, metal, and other basic industries, and start a national campaign against company unions.

JOHNSON WARNS HARRIMAN MILLS

Says Eagle Will Again Be Removed If Mills Refuse To Bargain.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—(P)—Hugh S. Johnson gave notice today that he had the Blue Eagle if the Tennessee firm refuses to bargain collectively with representatives of its workers.

In making this statement, the NRA administrator said he personally would not have signed the July 17 agreement restoring the Eagle but that he had "to stand behind NRA officials."

The settlement returning the Eagle was made by A. R. Glancy, federal compliance administrator during Johnson's absence in the west. It immediately was protested by labor as "repudiation" of striking workers. New terms were worked out in conference and sent to Harriman.

Major George L. Berry, division administrator, secured labor's approval of these terms and said today the mill owners "have asked interpretation of certain provisions."

"It was merely an inquiry, not an objection," Berry said when called on by Johnson to explain the situation. "But there is a possibility the mills might again be in violation of section A by refusing to recognize the union."

"From Major Berry's report to me," Johnson said, "the company steadily refuses to recognize the duly elected representatives of their men for the purpose of collective bargaining. If they just simply say they will not talk to these men I'll remove their Blue Eagle on account of a 'breach' of the code and not on account of any violation in the past."

Glancy's agreement would have 25 strikers employed within 60 days if the strikers accepted the settlement within 30 days. Then three out of every four new employees would come from strike ranks until 50 were back on the payroll or until January 1 arrives.

Board of Three Judges Is Selected To Award Scholarships to Riverside Military Academy

The board of judges which will make the awards of seven scholarships to Riverside Military Academy given by The Constitution. Left to right, Hamilton Lokey, Harold Patterson and W. Colquitt Carter. Staff photos by George Cornett.

By The SCHOLARSHIP EDITOR.

Three young and successful members of the Atlanta bar will compose the board of judges for The Atlanta Constitution's Riverside Military Academy scholarship contest, which closed at midnight last night.

The board of judges this morning will receive all entries in the contest, one of the most successful from the point of large numbers of contestants. The Constitution ever has conducted. All entries received with a post office cancellation of not later than midnight Wednesday night will go to the judges.

The three judges selected are:

W. Colquitt Carter.

Hamilton Lokey.

Harold Patterson.

Mr. Carter was born in Atlanta in 1904. He attended Boys' High and the University of Georgia, where he was graduated in 1924 with an A. B. degree. He is a Phi Beta Kappa. Mr. Carter then attended Harvard Law school, was an editor of the Harvard Law Review and took his L. L. B. degree there in 1927. He is a practicing attorney and has been a member of the firm of Bryan, Middlebrook and Carter since 1927.

Mr. Lokey also is a native of Atlanta, having been born here in 1910. He attended Boys' High and has his A. B., 1931, and his L. L. B., 1933, degrees from the University of Georgia. He is a member of S. A. E., Phi Delta Phi, Phi Beta Kappa and Phi Kappa Phi. He is associated with the law firm of Harold Hirsch & Marion Smith and a member of the Atlanta Lawyers' Club and the Georgia and Atlanta Bar Associations.

Mr. Patterson is a native of Athens and was born in 1903. After attending the Athens public schools, he took his B. S. at the University of Georgia in 1924 and his M. A. in 1925. He was an honor graduate at Georgia in 1928. He is associated with the firm of Dorsey & Shelton and is a member of the Atlanta Lawyers' Club and the Georgia and Atlanta Bar Associations.

The judges have completed their education in recent years. They are outstanding members of Atlanta's professional life. Their law training and experience since starting to practice gives them an outlook on education and life, without losing the boy attitude, which it is felt is necessary in studying the letters of application and interviewing the 20 boys to be selected for the final judging.

The judges will start this morning to go over the applications. It is believed that within three or four days, the announcement can be made in The Constitution of the 20 boys who will be asked to come to Atlanta so that the board of judges can personally interview them and from this group make the final seven awards.

One boy will be awarded a full one-year scholarship valued at $1,000 to Riverside Military Academy. Three boys will be awarded $500 scholarships and three more boys will be awarded $200 scholarships to Riverside.

The mail has brought letters of application every day since the first announcement was made on July 15 and during the last few days the number of letters has increased each day. Every letter will be carefully considered and the decisions of the board of judges will be final.

premiere screening is being made and will shift to CBS studios where Mark Warnow and his orchestra will perform hit tunes from the production. A cast of radio "ghosts" will re-enact scenes from the motion picture.

WGST schedules the broadcast from 8 to 8:45 o'clock tonight.

SUNLIGHT—A broadcast of importance to sun bathers, nudists and others who do and do not get out under the sun will be transmitted over WGST and the Columbia network today under the auspices of the New York Academy of Medicine.

Dr. Morris Costello, clinical assistant visiting dermatologist at Bellevue hospital, New York, will speak on "The Effect of Sunlight on the Skin" at 8:45 o'clock this morning.

CHAUSSEON—A favorite concert selection, Chausseon's Symphony in B flat major, will be performed by the Detroit Symphony orchestra, under the direction of Victor Kolar, today over the WGST-Columbia network commencing at 2 o'clock.

During the hour-long broadcast, Kolar will also perform Bizet's overture, "Patrie," and Percy Grainger's "Colonial Song."

BLUE EAGLE BOARD SEEN BY JOHNSON

Code Ruler Expects Own Job To Diminish If Not Vanish.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—(P)—A Blue Eagle board of directors was planning his one-man control and a special agency for harmonizing code rule with anti-trust laws were envisioned by Hugh S. Johnson today as essential for the NRA of tomorrow.

In this picture his own colorful bossdom of coded industry would diminish, if not vanish altogether.

"If the president wants me to," Johnson said, "I might act as chairman of this board if it was part time, but I couldn't give full time."

But, he added with a chuckle, "I'm not trying to save a place for myself."

Johnson was in good spirits as he discussed NRA problems with the press for the first time since his western trip. As he talked of giving way to a board of directors, he had the look of a schoolboy with summer holidays at hand.

He saw the new organization as possible of fulfillment "within two or three months," and said the plan then would be recommended to congress for permanent enactment. The law which created NRA expires next June.

Just now, the subject of NRA's future is being worked out by Johnson and Donald Richberg, emergency council director, for presentation to the president.

Richberg is giving particular attention to reconciling NRA with anti-trust laws. A return to anti-trust principles was figured prominently in demands of NRA contracts, including Senators Borah, republicans, Idaho, and Nye, republican, North Dakota.

"There is a conflict between the anti-trust acts at the federal trade commission and this commission," Johnson said. "I delegated to Richberg that he straighten it out and he will straighten it out. It is not very difficult."

"We at NRA think control of competition is the answer. The anti-trust acts say there shall be only uncontrolled competition."

"I think I see some sort of institution which will reconcile the differences. It is not clearly worked out. I think two or three people might pass on that point."

RAILROADS DENIED WRIT ON PENSIONS

Carriers Lose First Round in Legal Cam- paign Against U. S. Law

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—(AP)—

The railroads of the country today were denied a temporary order in District of Columbia supreme court to restrain the railroad retirement board from starting operation of the pension law passed by the last session of congress.

Justice Proctor, after being told by Hammond Chaffitz, representing the attorney-general, that the board contemplates asking only enough advance of funds by the railroads to start administrative work, held that the railroads were not in danger of sufficient damage to warrant a temporary order.

As a result of the decision further hearings on the case probably will not be held for several weeks.

One hundred and fifty of the larger railroads of the country, through a counsel committee headed by R. V. Fletcher, general counsel for the Association of Railway Executives, had attacked the retirement act on the ground it violated the commerce clause of the constitution because it was not a regulation of interstate commerce, and also the fifth amendment by being arbitrary and depriving the carriers of property without due process of law.

Employees of the railroads, under the law, would contribute 2 per cent of their pay, while the railroads contribute 4 per cent of their pay rolls. The retirement board has the right under the law to call on the railroads for advances sufficient to start operation.

TALMADGE SCOFFS AT FOES' CHARGE HE OPPOSES F. D. R.

Cohen was the leader of the forces seeking to delay transfer of the money to Georgia.

"Everybody in Georgia knows that when I went to Washington and gave the president the true picture of the situation, he released the funds to Georgia at once," the governor said.

Governor Talmadge was introduced by Judge Lucien P. Goodrich, former member of the state court of appeals, a former classmate of the governor's at the University of Georgia and the president of the Spaulding County Roosevelt for President Clubs in 1932.

"I am going to present to you Georgia's present governor and the next governor of Georgia," Judge Goodrich said. "I want to tell all of you that I was president of the Spaulding County Roosevelt Club in 1932 and I know what Governor Talmadge did for the president in that campaign. I know what he has done in co-operating with the president since he took office. In Georgia it is Roosevelt and Talmadge and no charges of people who sat on the fence during the early years of the campaign and then when the wind was blowing ran up into the front of the parade and shouted 'Let me carry the flag.'"

Judge Goodrich said that he had known Governor Talmadge since his early manhood, had roomed with him at college and had roomed with him at Atlanta during their early days as lawyers.

"Keeping His Promises."

"I am not only going to present to you the governor of Georgia but I am going to present to you the man, Eugene Talmadge, a man who has kept and who will continue to keep his promises," the jurist said. "We all know what Eugene Talmadge has done and we know what he is going to try to do. We do not know much about the others, we know little of what they have done and we only have general and rather vague statements of what they intend to do."

The crowd received Judge Goodrich's statements warmly, loudly cheering his mention of the governor's co-operation with the president.

The visitors, which included delegations from a score of adjacent and nearby counties were welcomed to Griffin by W. W. Chesser, solicitor general of the Griffin circuit.

"We are proud to see such a great throng here today to welcome to Griffin the greatest governor this state ever had," Solicitor General Conner said.

The estimate of the crowd was made by Quincy Melton, editor of the Griffin Daily News, after he had surveyed the throng with General James M. Kimbrough, well-known retired army officer.

Citing the successful efforts of the public utility commission to reduce public utility rates in Georgia and calling attention to the fact that President Roosevelt in his speech last week at Green Bay, Wis., again reiterated his often expressed views that ## utility rates should be lower, the governor declared that "no governor in the United States has aided the president more in carrying out this principle of the New Deal than the governor of Georgia."

"In last Saturday, the three-judge court in Fulton county, composed of Hon. Virlyn B. Moore, E. D. Thomas and E. E. Pomeroy, refused to grant an injunction against the public service commission of Georgia for the Georgia Power and Light Company," the governor said.

"What does this mean? It means that the reduced power and light rates ordered by the public service commission went into effect in south Georgia."

"These reduced rates will save the people of that section of Georgia $36,000 this year in that company alone. It will leave this much money in the pockets of the people."

"We have already secured reductions in rates of the Savannah Power and Electric Company and the Georgia Power Company. This covers the entire state of Georgia."

"I presume that the opposition will say the TVA accomplished this."

"Of course, they won't admit that any good has come out of the present administration, nor the present public service commission that I appointed to lower rates and help the people. The Georgia Power and Light Company first went to the federal courts to secure an injunction against these lower rates going into effect."

"Thanks to the Johnson bill they passed in congress this spring, the federal court would not take jurisdiction of the case. All reductions in utility rates now will eventually go before our superior courts and a jury."

"The governor read a telegram from Chairman J. P. Wilhoit, of the public service commission, informing him that the three-judge federal court had dismissed the latest application of the railroads for an injunction against the 17 per cent freight rate cut ordered by the commission and the crowd cheered loudly."

"This is where we are co-operating with the president," the governor said. "The president worked for the adoption of the Johnson bill and we are using it in Georgia. Rate orders hereafter will be passed on by a jury of 12 tax payers and we know they will be fair both to the people and to the utilities."

"Silence Thunder."

"Since my opening speech at Bainbridge, I have reiterated every time the same thing. I have called attention to my activities towards getting a reduction in utility rates in Georgia is what thunders in this campaign."

"They have never answered it. The answer is simple. It is the only puny evasion they make about it is the TVA, and we see in the papers the report that the TVA could not furnish power and lights to the city of Atlanta for the next two years."

"You probably noticed that in the president's speech at Green Bay, Wis., he called attention to the importance of lower utility rates in the United States, and expressed the hope that the governors of the several states would join in to bring this to the attention of the president."

"No governor in the United States has aided the president more in carrying out this principle of the New Deal than the governor of Georgia."

The governor charged that the recent reduction in freight rates, we will have a clear record in Georgia of reducing all utility rates.

A petition to reduce the cost of gas is now before the public service commission. They are now investigating this and will have a hearing on same."

"Let us Uphold by Courts."

Ridiculing the contention of his opposition that he achieves his objectives by illegal methods of procedure, the governor declared that his work has been continually been sustained by the courts.

"The opposition says that what we do is illegal," he said. "Every one of these actions on rate reductions has been sustained. All other actions that have been taken since I have been governor of Georgia have finally been affirmed by the courts."

The governor charged that the same forces now opposing his candidacy for re-election opposed release of the $10,000,000 federal emergency highway fund to the state last year after he had put out of office Captain J. W. Barnett, of Athens, and Colonel W. C. Vereen, of Moultrie, chairman and board member of the state highway board.

He recalled how it was necessary for him to make a trip to Washington and personally see President Roosevelt before he was able to overcome the opposition then and how promptly the president acted after the matter had been laid before him.

"The opposition has made desperate efforts in this campaign. This campaign has been going since we turned out the old highway department, and the old public service commission," he declared.

Immediately after we appointed a new highway commission, the opposition sent committees to Washington, and did their very best to have the $10,500,000 federal road fund held up and not given to Georgia."

"They wanted the Talmadge administration to be a failure. They did not care anything about the roads

MANCHUKUO STIRS RUSSIAN PROTESTS

The dispatches said this move would be a forerunner of Japan's seizure of the railroad, long under dispute.

The same dispatches declared the Manchukuo police already had arrested 100 persons and the railway owned jointly now by Russia and Manchukuo. Manchukuo seized half ownership from China when the new state was formed nearly three years ago.

More arrests were expected shortly as part of Japan's alleged campaign of putting pressure on the soviet government to force it to sacrifice the C. E. R., a strategic line linking southern Manchukuo with the trans-Siberian railway to the north.

In the state. They did not care anything about the welfare of the people. They were willing for Georgia to suffer, in order to carry out their political vengeance.

"What happened on this controversy? Several delegations met with the federal bureau of roads, and nothing definite has been accomplished."

"This went on for about six weeks. Finally, on September 7, 1933, I went to see the president myself, and after talking with President Roosevelt, Secretary Interior Ickes, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and McDonald, director of the federal bureau of roads, the president looked around and said: 'Yes, Gene, of course Georgia is entitled to those funds.'"

"That same day, Mr. McDonald, head of the federal bureau of roads, released the funds to Georgia, and since that day there have been more and more better roads built in Georgia than at any time in its history."

Co-operation Claimed.

"The present highway department of Georgia and the federal bureau of roads co-operate in the kindest spirit. Whenever we need their help they give it; and whenever they call on us to co-operate it is done that same day."

"When I came into the hotel, I was tired, and dripping with perspiration. I wanted to take a bath and rest."

"What did I find in the papers when I walked into the lobby?"

"I found that John E. Whitley, contractor on two big state jobs, had been enjoined from continuing the work unless he paid the minimum wage scale of 40 cents per hour."

"Of course the opposition did not care anything about John Whitley. They did not care anything about the work. They wanted to stop the building of those roads and then blow it in the papers that the highway department of Georgia had broken down the lobby."

"The highway department did not talk about law suits and let the work stop."

"What did they do? They got busy and W. E. Wilburn started out at midnight, drove over to Thomson and took over the work of that road, and not a minute was lost in building the road from Thomson to Washington."

"Max L. McRae drove at midnight to Barnesville, hunted all night for the foreman of the local relief committee, and the highway department had taken over that work and not a minute's time was lost."

"The opposition also wanted to stop the highway department from building the road from Jackson to Jenkinsburg, and from Covington to Porterdale."

"They don't consider the people. They don't consider the need for the roads. They wanted to tie up the highway department and make the state and the people suffer, thinking they could gain a political advantage thereby. But they were caught off the base again."

"Instead of the opposition delaying the work on these two new projects, they have hastened it."

"The highway department has taken over these jobs, and work is going on right now."

"For the past year and a half, the opposition has pictured me as the chief villain of the United States."

"They have accused all of my friends, in Georgia of being henchmen and hirelings."

"He Kept His Promises."

"Of course, they know they will have to make the welkin ring and send out poison gas to try to make the people forget that old Talmadge carried out his promises and kept his word."

"The people of Georgia don't forget. They were saved practically $3,000,000 by the $3 tag order during the past two years."

"The people of Georgia remember that they were saved last year and this year over $2,500,000 through my reduction of the ad valorem tax."

"The people of Georgia remember that they have been saved over $10,000,000 through my actions to lower utility rates in this state."

"The people of Georgia know that the highway department has saved up $2,000,000 to pay the school teachers and Confederate pensioners of Georgia."

"They are going to send a legislature to the capitol to pass that bill in January, and have old Gene Talmadge there to approve it."

"With this starting the opposition in the face, look on any of their actions or utterances with charity. They are driven to the desperate course they have taken."

Baby Given Treatment For Rattlesnake Bite

George Jones Jr., 2 years old, of 625 Cooper street, was treated at Grady hospital Wednesday afternoon for what was suspected of being a rattlesnake bite, though the child displayed no symptoms of having been bitten by the snake other than two small marks on his right foot. He was given anti-venom serum and dismissed following a careful examination.

In Georgia, organized and unorganized, knows it is wrong for me to sanction and have the highway department put on a wage scale of 40 cents per hour as a minimum to be paid out of the state treasury."

"The real laborers of Georgia would not have any respect for me. If I had put across this measure, which would have had negroes shoveling dirt and rolling wheelbarrows, drawing 40 cents per hour, while the white women were at work in the cotton fields beside the road, seeing this going on."

"The textile workers, the carpenters, the railroad employees, the brick masons, farm hands and everyone else, are not in favor of any such foolishness. They want good wages, and I want them to make good wages."

Wage Scales in Effect.

"They want me to see that the tax money paid out for wages is in keeping with the wage scale in the local community where the work is done. And this is exactly the order that is in effect now."

"On last Wednesday, I came into the hotel from a trip to Thomson. I had driven 320 miles that day in an automobile, stopping along the route to talk to friends."

"I addressed a crowd at Rutledge, Greensboro and then more than 12,000 at Thomson. On my way back, I spoke to over 1,500 at Lexington."

"I was tired, and dripping with perspiration. I wanted to take a bath and rest."

"What did I find in the papers when I walked into the lobby?"

"I found that John E. Whitley, contractor on two big state jobs, had been enjoined from continuing the work unless he paid the minimum wage scale of 40 cents per hour."

PITTMAN BACKERS FORM CLUB HERE

sign by saying that I was going to defeat Eugene Talmadge with the vote of the farmers and the laboring people of Georgia and today I say it more than ever."

Judge Shepard Bryan presided over the meeting as chairman of the club's organization committee. He first introduced Mr. Arnold.

"The time has come in Georgia when the state must change its leadership," the Atlanta attorney said. "We are going to change that leadership on September 12 when the people vote to turn out Eugene Talmadge and make Judge Claude C. Pittman governor in his stead."

Mr. Nix, who instructed Judge Pittman during his years at the University of Georgia and who is head of the Pittman club in Clarke county, predicted that Fulton as well as the county would be in the Pittman column. Mr. Nix, runner-up to governor Talmadge in the seven-man race for the governorship, carried Fulton county in this campaign.

On September 12 we are going to put an end to disorder and chaos in our state government and substitute Claude C. Pittman for Eugene Talmadge."

Boyd's Scores Pardons.

Solicitor-General John A. Boydlin scored Governor Talmadge for the pardons and paroles he has issued.

"President Roosevelt's reaction to the pardon is not safe now," the county prosecutor said. "Every time a thug wants to shoot someone he says 'he'll go and do it and get a pardon from Eugene Talmadge.'"

"I am talking with a solicitor-general of an adjoining district and he told me that he was working in vain and that he was not running for re-election this year because of the number of speeches in behalf of Judge Pittman."

Mr. Howard, who has made a number of speeches in behalf of Judge Pittman's candidacy, scored Governor Talmadge for his alleged failure to carry out the intent of President Roosevelt's recovery program in Georgia.

Gene Talmadge hasn't the slightest conception of what the president is trying to do," the attorney charged.

Judge Reville said he thought that Judge Pittman would carry his home county of Meriwether and added that he felt sure that the county would carry the election.

Colonel Paxon made only a few brief remarks, saying that he was glad to see the company of Mr. Arnold, Mr. Nix, Mr. Quinn, Mr. Howard, Mr. Boydlin and the others, and to what he could to help the candidacy of Judge Pittman."

Mr. Bateman predicted that Judge Pittman would carry Clarke Park by a handsome majority. He is a former mayor of that suburb.

After the meeting the club president, Mr. Tharpe, announced that headquarters would be maintained at the Piedmont and that announcement of the organization's future activities would be made in a few days.

a business without payment of the state license. Judge Pittman is said to have urged that this law be amended to apply only to Confederate veterans and to have said that in its present form it is largely taken in advantage of by "medicine men, fruit vendors and the dishonest."

"The purpose of the department, Mr. Greene stated, to make a complete and careful investigation of this charge to discover exactly what was said, if anything, by Judge Pittman in reference to disabled veterans and their license exemption."

Text of Resolutions.

Test resolutions adopted by Post 390 Tuesday night follows:

"Whereas, the governor of Georgia, Eugene Talmadge, is an honorary member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Post 390, Atlanta, Ga. and

"Whereas, the present incumbent, Governor Eugene Talmadge, is now, and has been in sympathy with the veterans of all wars for their vicarious sacrifices and meritorious services rendered on the fields of battle in defense of these United States, and

"Whereas, the present governor has at all times manifested due and honest respect for the former defenders of this country, and,

"Whereas, the present governor, Eugene Talmadge, continues to honor and vindicate their splendid ## record for services rendered while in the military service of the United States, and

"Whereas, it is the paramount duty of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Post No. 390, Atlanta, Ga., to make this fact known to all veterans throughout the state of Georgia."

"Therefore, be it resolved, that the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Post No. 390, Atlanta, Ga., go on record in approving the unprecedented record made by the present governor, Eugene Talmadge, and thanking him for his loyalty and devotion to the former defenders of this nation and the state of Georgia."

new crop control program for this year will be continued."

The Alabama senator said he thought suspension of the processing taxes would have a good psychological effect, although he favored the principle of the levy.

He said the tax might be lifted on the ground that not as much money would be needed to finance cotton marketing and control next year.

The Alabama was one of the authors of the 10-cent loan plan last year. He said that cotton could be "pegged" by loans and that he thought this would carry prices over the "usual sagging during the marketing period."

JAPAN BEWILDERED BY WORLD ENMITY

fearful by the realization that the rest of the world had suddenly turned the back of the hand to them."

This attitude of the Japanese public is reflected in the concise picture of Japan's problems painted in a conversation between the writer and a distinguished member of the Japanese government.

"Only a little more than a half century ago," this able and earnest statesman pointed out, "Japan was an isolated and unimportant Far Eastern country. We had little or no contact with the outside world, but in our own way we were happy, contented and prosperous. Then the great western nations told us we must tear down the wall we had built around us and take our proper place among the nations of the world."

"We did not want to do so, but we were forced to acquiesce. It will be recalled that as the result of the Simonsen incident, when the feudal lord of one of our southern islands attempted to defy the edict of the emperor that foreigners should be admitted, we were forced to pay heavy indemnities."

"As a nation we put our shoulders to the wheel and began a half century of development that has not been equaled in the history of the world. At one time we had more than 2,000 paid advisers from America and Europe instructing us in the ways of the western world. As a result of the great nations and the ability of the Japanese people to assimilate and adopt modern conditions, we came to the place in the family of nations that we were told 50 years before we must attempt to attain."

"Having done what we were told to do—having torn down the wall with which we had surrounded ourselves and having revolutionized our methods of living—we are now told that we must erect that wall again under modern conditions our territory is no longer enough to accommodate our population, but one by one the nations of the world have closed their doors to immigration from Japan, and their leaders are now keeping our people busy, we are now having the markets of the world closed to our products."

Do Too Well.

"We have done only what we were told we must do. Perhaps it is because we have done the job better than was expected that the world is now building the wall around us that we were made to tear down."

"Under the conditions of a half century ago, we would be isolated and still happy and prosperous within the limits of our modest needs. Now, in our new status, a return to these conditions is impossible."

Can any fair-minded person wonder, in view of these facts, that the people of Japan, and their leaders, are distressed over the turn taken in their international relations?"

Some Recentment.

Not all of Japan's leaders, by any means, feel as does the statesman quoted. Especially on the part of some of the militarists there is an attitude of resentment, evidenced both by a willingness to utterly disregard the opinion of other powers and the effort to inflame the Japanese public by a continuous waving of the red flag of alleged injustice to Japan by the rest of the world."

For nearly two years following the Mukden and Shanghai incidents and the Jehol campaign the war spirit flamed high in Japan and the radicals of the military faction, despite the fact they compose a comparatively small per cent of the leaders of Japan

nese thought, were able to maintain dominance over the government.

During the past year the war spirit has rapidly died out and as a result the liberals have taken over the government and gradually strengthened their position. The extent to which this drift has progressed is illustrated in the loss of influence by the fiery Araki, who as war minister was the leader of the militarists, and the assumption of much of his power by the suave and pacific Hirota, now minister of foreign affairs."

Araki Out.

During the period of radical control of the government anything that Araki said was first page news from the press of Japan. Now the public has lost interest in his policies to such an extent that his name seldom appears in print.

Japan has made mistakes, but she feels that they are no worse than those other nations have made. She feels that because she frankly admits them, she is entitled to the continued friendship of the other powers."

The Japanese do not ask sympathy. They are far too proud and sure of the nation's position for that. But they do ask that the other powers make a honest effort to understand their policies and activities. That she is in need of such understanding, there can be no doubt."

talk Gardner drove away with his two companions.

It was not possible to ascertain their destination, but it was understood not to be Toronto.

There were rumors earlier in the evening that a brewery official had received a note with Labatt's signature.

"Absolutely no message has been received," he said.

A spokesman for the family, Claude Labatt, London attorney, said finally that contact cannot be made in Toronto because of the large number of persons interested in the movements of Hugh Labatt.

The attorney was advised, he said, that Labatt no longer expects to get in touch with the kidnapers, but the next move was not revealed.

The provincial investigation department canceled all leaves and holidays and mobilized its forces in the search for the missing man.

Join in Search.

The famous royal Canadian mounted police joined with provincial authorities and municipal forces in seeking clues.

The territory between Arnia and London, the route on which Labatt disappeared, was searched thoroughly by police and volunteers.

Wooded sections were gone over, and several automobiles were stopped and examined—all without result.

A representative of the family said that, ignoring the warning that Labatt would be killed if police were informed, notified not only Canadian authorities, but also asked the aid of the United States department of justice and Detroit police.

Windsor, Ont., officials, after conferring with Detroit authorities across the Detroit river, declared that no search would be made unless they were told by the crime.

'Treasure Island' Opens Tonight With Special Showing at Grand

Long John Silver and Billy Bones. Ben Gunn and Jim Hawkins, characters of Robert Louis Stevenson's "Treasure Island," become familiar to every youngster and live in the memory of long after most heroes of childhood have faded. Stevenson's masterpiece delights young and old alike, modern or Victorian, man or woman, and the filmization of this famous story is an event which everyone will welcome.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's magnificent film spectacle, "Treasure Island," will be presented at Loew's Grand theater for a special showing this evening at 8:30 o'clock, and for the week ensuing. This premiere will be an elaborate occasion. The current picture, "Paris Interlude," will be discontinued at 7 o'clock to make way for its successor.

With striking fidelity to the book, this film has been made with appreciation of the many fine qualities of the story. Scenes in the old Admiral Bannow Inn, where the tale begins, at the Bristol harbor, from which the chief characters sail in search of treasure, and on the desert island where the search is continued—all these are colorful, high picturesque, and impressively accurate.

One of the finest casts imaginable has been provided for "Treasure Island"—Jackie Cooper, Wallace Beery, Lionel Barrymore, Lewis Stone, Otto Kruger, Chic Sale, Cora Sue Collins and Dorothy Peterson appear in the production.

Jackie Cooper is Jim Hawkins, who, with his mother, is operating the Admiral Bannow Inn since his father's death. To it comes the mysterious Billy Bones, haunted by dead men, broken by excess and over-indulgence in rum. To the youthful Jim it is obvious that Bones is terrified of something, of what it is not clear until one stormy night, when a band of sea dogs come to the tavern to kill old Billy Bones. But they arrived too late—Billy is already dead, from apoplexy, and Jim Hawkins has found the map to Treasure Island.

And one of the world's most thrilling tales has begun, a tale which loses none of its fascinations as "Treasure Island" grows older.

Missouri Attorney Beaten by Farmers

CARUTHERSVILLE, Mo., Aug. 15.—(AP)—Charles L. Waugh, St. Louis attorney for a committee of holders of drainage district bonds, was beaten severely today by a group of farmers gathered here for a tax sale.

Waugh said he was attacked by a group of men in the hall of the Pemiscot county courthouse after being asked if he intended to bid on tax sales scheduled to be held today by Sheriff S. E. Jaden. Four stitches were necessary to close a head wound in Waugh's head, but his condition was not serious.

"If you go on with this you are going to get the — beat out of you," Waugh said he was informed by one of the men. The attorney related that he had been in Sheriff Jaden's office on the first floor of the building, and was escorted as he sought to follow the sheriff to a courtroom on the third floor.

After the beating he obtained medical treatment, then went to a hotel. He was undecided whether to attend the sale.

Sales of 15 farms were scheduled today to satisfy judgments obtained by drainage districts against the owners of the properties for non-payment of taxes.

COMPETITION EVILS INVADE SCHOOLS, N. C. GROUP TOLD

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Aug. 15.—(AP)—Two evils of overcompetition and price cutting are invading ivy clad halls, just as they did in the business field before the New Deal, nearly 400 prominent educators were told at the third annual meeting of the conference of church related colleges here today.

The report of the finding committee of the group, headed by President W. P. Few, of Duke University, declared that state colleges and other tax supported schools are cutting tuition rates to take students away from other colleges and that the awarding of scholarships as a mere inducement to students to register, without any regard to merit, has become widespread.

The result, the committee declared, is that students are being pauperized, professors are being overloaded and the taxpayers are being made the goats.

NAVY GETS BIDS FOR 12 WARSHIPS

Additional Craft Will Be Constructed in Government Yards.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—(AP)—Another big step toward a full treaty strength fleet was taken today when the navy department received bids for the construction of 12 warships from 13 shipbuilding companies.

Twelve more vessels in the new construction program are to be built in navy yards, but the awards are not to be made until the fall.

Bids, opened today by Secretary Swanson in the presence of the high commanding admirals, showed a sharp increase in the anticipated costs. Indications were the total cost for the program expected to be around $50,000,000 and $65,000,000.

Contract awards are to be made in about two weeks after the bids received have been studied. The program calls for one 10,000-ton eight-inch gun cruiser, the keel of which cannot be laid down until January 1, 1935, under the London arms conference agreement; a 10,000-ton six-inch gun cruiser; two destroyer leaders, five destroyers and three submarines.

Completion of the 24 ships in the current building program will leave the navy still shy of 78 vessels of an aggregate tonnage of 136,975 of the London treaty limit.

High naval officials privately expressed the view that the construction authorized and planned would place the United States in an improved position in the event the projected 1935 naval arms conference is called.

Besides the 24 ships in the present program, the navy has 45 craft either under construction or contract.

All bidders submitted alternate proposals based on whether labor costs and material prices were to remain stationary, and if the government would reimburse them for advances in labor and material costs.

Rise to 92 Degrees Forecast for Today

Warmer weather today and for the next two or three days is in prospect, the weather bureau predicted Wednesday.

Today's extremes are expected to be near 72 and 92 degrees, with probably fair weather.

Wednesday was fair with a temperature range of 71 to 91 degrees. Rain was reported in south Georgia, Florida, and along the southern border of the Gulf states.

RE-EMPLOYMENT BOARD HOLDS FIRST MEETING

The first meeting of the supervisory committee of the national re-employment office in the postoffice building was held Wednesday to discuss PWA projects and other employment operations for the coming year.

W. D. Doak, of the re-employment office, announced Mike Benton was named chairman and Scott Candler vice-chairman of the committee.

The committee, which was appointed by the state director of the re-employment service, will supervise the activities of the Atlanta office. At the meeting the members also discussed the increased activity in private placements, it was said. Members of the committee include prominent citizens representing widely separated fields of government service and individual enterprise.

DROUTH CATTLE HIDES TO AID U. S. IN RELIEF

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—(UP)—Fears of hide merchants and shoe manufacturers that the already depressed leather market would be demoralized by the dumping on the market of hides from slaughtered drouth cattle, were allayed by the federal surplus relief corporation tonight. It announced that beginning September 5 it would take over all government-acquired hides for relief purposes.

FRENCH EX-KING OF DRESSMAKERS NOW IN DOLE LINE

PARIS, Aug. 15.—(AP)—Paul Poirot, former "king of the French dressmakers" is living on a 70-cent-a-day unemployment dole, he said today, he has not given up hope for a comeback.

"I stand in line with thousands of other penniless persons waiting to have my card punched and get a few sous," he said.

He is still living in his penthouse apartment, but does not know how much longer he will be able to remain there.

"There is a little charity restaurant not far from where I live," Poirot explained, and friends have been kind about giving me clothes.

Ten years ago Poirot was one of France's richest men, spending thousands of dollars entertaining in his chateau and taking the world's aristocracy for cruises on his three yachts.

His financial downfall began with the 1929 crash and he sold his houses, boats and cars one by one to pay bills until none was left.

"But I haven't given up," he said today. "I spend most of my time with scissors and cloth, cutting dresses. Sometimes someone will buy one and I will start back on the road to success."

VICTIM OF STABBING TO BE BURIED TODAY

Funeral services for William F. Hanes, 39, of 431 Temple avenue, College Park, who died from stab wounds inflicted in a fight with his roommate, were held today. The funeral was held at 11 o'clock this morning from the Riverside Baptist church. The Rev. Y. A. Young will officiate and burial will be in King's cemetery with Harry G. Foy in charge.

The roommate, S. F. Simmons, 55, a carpenter living at 38 Fair street, is being held by police. He told police that Hanes was another man, both of whom he thought were drinking, came into the room and attacked him without provocation. While defending himself, he told police, he inflicted the stab wounds which resulted in Hanes' death in a few minutes.

U. S. SEEKS PEACE ON STRIKE FRONTS

Keightly Is Delegated To Confer With Aluminum Company Officials.

By the Associated Press.

Federal labor relations officials Wednesday sought to untangle the net of strikes which has been keeping thousands of workers idle in many sections of the country.

After conciliators at Washington had heard labor's side of the four-day-old walkout of workers at the six plants of the aluminum company, Fred Keightly, labor department official, was designated to go to Pittsburgh to confer with executives of the company.

Nearly 10,000 workers are on strike. President Roosevelt and other Washington officials received renewed pleas for decisive action to end the truck drivers' strike at Minneapolis.

The appeals came from the employers' advisory committee and asked that elections to determine the wish of employees concerning collective bargaining representatives be ordered.

A petition for an election in the mills of the Standard Tin Plate Company at Canonsburg, Pa., was presented to the national steel labor board at Pittsburgh by the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers.

The executive council of the American Federation of Labor announced that it would ask Ohio authorities to investigate charges that union employees on strike in onion fields of the state were being "oppressed." It was charged the strikers were being arrested in great number and being held in excessive bond.

A warning that "fists would fly" if there is further agitation to start a strike of relief recipients at Belleville, Ill., was sounded by George Brechitz of that city. About 200 persons sought to persuade the workers to abandon a project Tuesday.

Members of the newly formed union of Chicago Motor Coach Company drivers voted to strike Thursday. State attorney's police said only 48 of the 67 members of the union attended the strike meeting.

AUSTRIAN CEMETERY CLAIMS SPANISH PRINCE

POERTSCHACH-ON-WOERTHER SEE, Austria, Aug. 15.—(AP)—Don Gonzalo, fourth son of Alfonso and Victoria, former rulers of Spain, was laid to rest today in a small cemetery in this Carinthian summer resort. Interment was temporary against the day when his body shall finally be buried in Spain.

Funeral services for the 19-year-old prince, who died Sunday following an automobile accident, were held in the garage of the villa. The garage was transformed into a chapel and was filled with the whole royal family, representatives of the Austrian government including Emil Fery, minister of security, and a great number of members of the Spanish and French nobility.

DODGE

1 1/2-TON TRUCK

FOR ONLY

$490*

Today the prices of America's three lowest-priced trucks are virtually identical. Yet in a show-down of features Dodge leads by an astonishing margin. Dodge gives you such known, recognized advantages as these: Valve seat inserts to save gas and valve grinding; hydraulic brakes to save tires and brake linings; full-floating rear axle to cut service costs; 4 piston rings instead of the usual three, to save gas and oil; 4 main bearings instead of the usual three, to check vibration and prolong engine life. There are 18 of these advantages by actual count that Dodge gives you. And only Dodge among low-priced trucks gives you anywhere near all of them.

For over 17 years the name "Dodge" on a truck has been synonymous with dependability... long life... low-cost miles. There are many Dodge trucks on the highway today that have delivered 300,000 miles and more of dependable service.

Just ask your Dodge dealer for a copy of the Dodge "Show-Down" score card. It shows you what Dodge has and what other low-priced trucks have. See how much more Dodge offers you. Then compare the delivered prices and you will see at once why so many thousands of new buyers are swinging to today's outstanding Dodge values.

under the ocean surface today, achieving a new record for deep-sea diving in their two-ton "bathysphere."

The Americans reached a depth of 3,028 feet, bettering their record of last Saturday by 518 feet and their goal of half a mile by 334.

The dive was made at approximately the same spot where they went down four days ago, and the daring observers of undersea life were prevented from going deeper only by Captain James Sylvester, master of the barge from which they dropped into the sea.

Captain Sylvester gave an order that no more cable be paid out, although 47 feet remained on the drum when the two men had reached the maximum depth.

The scientists were sealed in their big sphere for 2 hours and 46 minutes, 2 hours and 41 minutes of which were occupied in going down and coming up.

The dive was the last deep-sea undertaking of the "bathysphere" expedition planned for this year, but several dives in shallower water along the shore will be made later. In these undertakings the sphere will remain below for longer periods.

Dr. Beebe reported that at 2,750 feet he saw a large gray shadow of the largest fish he ever saw in undersea explorations. It was illuminated by innumerable lights from small creatures.

At the maximum depth there was 10 tons pressure on each window of the bathysphere and the pressure per square inch on the body of the device was half a ton.

Barton took motion pictures, including some of the monsters sighted at 2,750 feet.

Later in the afternoon Barton and Gloria Hollister, associate of Dr. Beebe in his work, made a 1,208-foot dive, the third descent for Miss Hollister. She made notes on squids and fishes.

Dr. Beebe said that observations made during the last 500 feet of his dive indicated that for a half a mile fishes become larger, more numerous and brightly illuminated.

An American flag and a pennant of the National Geographic Society were fastened to the cable just above the sphere and thus taken further down in the sea than any flag has ever been.

John Trevan, Jocelyn Grane and other members of the Beebe expedition will make dives in the device later in the week.

ATLANTA IS FACING BIG TAX SHORTAGE

Property Digest May Cause $345,000 Loss, Joe Little Informs Milam.

The Atlanta city government Wednesday was faced with a $345,000 shortage due to failure of the personal property digest to produce $23,000,000 which had been anticipated, Joe C. Little, senior tax assessor, informed Councilman Aubrey Milam, vice chairman of the finance committee.

Little told Milam that his office is still checking books and personal properties with a view of obtaining the estimate carried in the June finance sheet, and asserted he believed the shortage will be cut materially when all the returns are in.

He expressed concern, however, that the entire amount would not be added for the year.

Real estate and intangibles have been held to the estimated figure of the finance sheet anticipations, but a marked drop in personal property has been recorded.

Atlanta's tax rate is 15 mills, and on the basis of the $23,000,000 figure quoted to Milam, the receipts would be $345,000 less than was expected from that source.

Personal property assessments for the year were set at $105,000,000, while real estate assessments anticipations were listed at $245,000,000.

The real estate anticipation will measure up, but Little said the personal property digest thus far shows only about $82,000,000 of the $105,000,000 estimate.

Elusive Serpent Gives Two Men a Day's Work

Staff members at the community employment service often work harder than the applicants for whom they find jobs. It has been learned Wednesday morning two men were sent out to answer a call for snake-hunters.

And while the office at 85 Poplar street was a whirl of activity making 50 contact calls during the day and selecting 25 young men to act as distributors for the products of a local firm, the snake-hunters earned a day's salary beating the bushes in a woman's backyard for a reptile that had evidently glided off to other green pastures.

the year were set at $105,000,000, while real estate assessments anticipations were listed at $245,000,000.

Four Bids Are Opened In University Project

D. A. Calhoun, supervisory projects manager for Techwood, Inc., Atlanta, federal low-cost housing project, Wednesday transmitted to Horatio B. Hackett, director of housing, federal emergency administration of public works, bids for demolition of buildings for the university project.

The bids were opened at the local office in the Atlanta National Bank building at 11 o'clock Wednesday. They will be considered by Harold L. Jakes, federal administrator of public works, and a contract is expected to be awarded.

Included in the area affected will be the properties bounded by Fair, Lawshe, Parsons and Elm streets.

Following are the bids submitted: Goldman Wrecking Company, Chicago, $850 to be paid to the federal government; Harris Wrecking Company, Baltimore, $367 to be paid to the government; W. H. Sorenson, Atlanta, $1,200 to be paid by the government to the contractor; Hudgins Contracting Company, Atlanta, $3,000 to be paid by the government to the contractor.

Social Affairs Feature Calendar At Tate Mountain Estates, Ga.

TATE MOUNTAIN ESTATES, Ga., Aug. 15.—Among interesting affairs on the social calendar for the past week-end at the Tate Mountain Estates was the informal tea at which Mrs. and Mrs. Robert H. Martin were hosts on Saturday at their home, Cracrow Cottage, at the Tate Mountain Estates, their guests including a group of visitors at Connahayne lodge. Flowers from Cracrow gardens were used in artistic arrangement by the hostess for the decorations throughout the lower floor of her attractive summer home. Among those in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Hightower, all of Thompson, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Jones Jr. of Canton; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Asseles, Jr. of Atlanta; H. Becker, Jr. of Atlanta; R. Bicknell, Miss Elsie Prater, Miss Yolande Gwin, Douglas Robertson, Kenton Higgins, all of Atlanta, and Paul W. Jones Jr. of Atlanta.

Miss Elsie Prater, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Bicknell, Douglas Robertson and Kenton Higgins have returned home after a visit to Connahayne lodge at the Tate Mountain Estates, where they were week-end guests.

Mrs. Steve Tate, of Tate, Ga., formerly of Atlanta, is spending a week with Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Martin in their home, Cracrow Cottage, at Tate Mountain Estates.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Asseles have returned from Connahayne lodge at the Tate Mountain Estates, where they spent their honeymoon.

Mrs. Cassels was, before her recent marriage, Miss Lena Knox, popular member of Atlanta society and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fitzhugh Knox.

Final Installment.

"I'd like to pretend to be a Sherlock Holmes, with Johnny here as Dr. Watson—but unfortunately the facts won't bear me out!" confessed Kent, grinning a little, but holding fast to Calissa's hand as though afraid she might vanish from him if he relaxed his grip a moment. "This afternoon, right after lunch, they told me at the hotel that a colored girl was waiting to see me. It proved to be Ruby, the Lawrence girl's maid. Ruby's boy friend was in trouble—was in jail! And the charge against him was pretty serious—a cutting scrape in which the loser was killed. Ruby didn't have any money to hire a lawyer, and it suddenly occurred to her that she might make a bargain with me. If she told me where you were, gave details of the whole frame-up, and consented to appear as a witness when Gordon and his crowd go on trial, when I was to provide a good lawyer to see her boy friend through his own little legal troubles. Needless to say, I agreed—and I left Ruby in the attorney's office, dictating a voluminous statement as to the affairs of the Gordon crowd, while another lawyer was interviewing her boy friend—and Johnny and I beat it up here, because Ruby was quite sure that not more than two or three men were on guard and we felt sure we could handle that many."

"And that," said Johnny, "is that! This Ruby is a smart gal—and how she was giving that lawyer the low-down on my Uncle Bobbie! It was all I could do to tear myself away—and I'm already reserving a front-row seat for his trial—after I get Aunt Sue to go to Europe for six months or more!"

"Darling!" said Kent, his eyes on Calissa. And Johnny, realizing that neither of them had heard him or were conscious of his presence, got up and took himself out of the room. "Darling!" said Kent, again, lifting Calissa's hand, and kissing the little pink palm.

Calissa leaned towards him, her heart in her eyes, her rose-red mouth trembling a little.

"You're—terribly wasteful, Kent!" she murmured, smiling through her tears, and Kent drew her close and kissed her lips tenderly.

"Calissa, I don't know how to ask you to forgive me—but Calissa, if I hadn't loved you so much, I wouldn't have cared so much—I'm a jealous brute—I'll probably make you thoroughly miserable part of the time, but I'll try—honestly I will—to make you so happy the rest of the time that you won't mind too much! Calissa, I seem to be using a lot of words just to say—I love you and I want you—and, please, will you marry me?"

Calissa's smile was dimmed by tears of happiness.

"I—just said you were—terribly wasteful, Kent—all you needed to say was—just the last! Oh, Kent, dear—I love you—I love you—even if I did try to hate you because you—didn't trust me! Oh—Kent, don't talk—just—kiss me!"

They were married late that evening—it was almost midnight—after they had handed Jake over to the police.

They were married in the rectory of a little church far out Peachtree Road, with Johnny and the minister's wife as witnesses. Calissa was married in the same frock she had donned some 30 hours ago, for that purpose, but it had gone through such strenuous service since then that she was glad to avail herself of the minister's wife's suggestion that she "brush up a bit" in the good lady's own room.

Her wedding bouquet was a truly gorgeous thing, which Johnny had ordered by long distance telephone from the mountain lodge while Kent and Calissa were still in the kitchen, patching up the misunderstandings and heartaches.

Two days later, they drove into the outskirts of Stanley Mills just at dusk.

Kent, glancing tenderly at his wife, smartly dressed and exquisitely pretty, frowned, and said, "Calissa, you're white as a sheet—what's the matter?"

"I'm—scared!" she confessed.

"Of mother?" asked Kent, frowning.

"Of—your mother!" admitted Calissa, simply.

"Oh, now, see here, Calissa, mother's not so bad as all that! She's human, you know—after all, she wants me to be happy, and once she is convinced that you alone can make me happy—why, then she won't mind, at all, that I've married you instead of a girl she picked out for me herself!"

Kent told her, cheerfully, "Snap out of it, Calissa—be yourself, and mother can't help liking you!"

Calissa tried to "snap" but with a very vivid memory of the day Mrs. Stanley had waited for her in the cluttered, dingy parlor of Aunt Lou's ugly little house, she found it a little hard to believe that Kent's mother would ever like her, really. But she clenched her hands in her lap, and squared her shoulders, and tried to be brave though her heart quailed at the thought of sharing the beautiful old mellow brick house with the cold-eyed, regal lady who had treated her with such disdain.

The roadster rolled up on the drive and came to a halt at the steps. The big front door opened, and framed in it stood Mrs. Stanley, erect, slender, beautifully dressed. The light was behind her, and so Calissa could not see her face or gain from it any hint of the treatment she could expect from this rather terrifying personage.

"Well, mother?" said Kent, and kissed his mother, and then drew Calissa forward. "This is Calissa, mother—my wife!"

"Yes!" said Mrs. Stanley, her voice level, quite expressionless. "How do you do, Calissa I hope that you and my son will be very happy!"

"Thank you, Mrs. Stanley!" stammered Calissa, faintly.

"I've had your room made ready, Kent—your luggage already there—no doubt Calissa will want to freshen up before dinner!" said Mrs. Stanley, quietly, expressionless.

In the big handsomely furnished room that overlooked the garden, brown and serene and ghostly this autumn night, Calissa clung to Kent, shaken, and Calissa tried to assure her that his mother would relent, and that everything would still be all right.

But it was not until the rather painful ordeal of dinner was over, and the three of them were in the living room, where the old negro butler had placed the coffee service, that Mrs. Stanley spoke quietly, almost gently, "Calissa, you've no occasion to be afraid of me I ask only that you make Kent happy!"

"We love each other!" said Kent.

A faint quiver crossed Mrs. Stanley's face, and her hands, busy with the coffee service, trembled faintly. But she went on, composedly:

"I'm going abroad with Mrs. Harper and Mrs. Pickett—I've wanted to go for years, but didn't like to leave Kent! But now that Kent is so happily settled, I am going—for a few months. It's best that young people be alone for the first months together—don't interrupt, Kent—and I feel sure that when I come back we shall all be very happy here together!"

Kent bent and kissed his mother's cheek.

"Mother, you're a peach!" he said, happily, heartily and put his arm about Calissa, holding her close. Calissa lifted her face to his and such a radiance of joy and faith and utter delight was in her face that Mrs. Stanley felt a little dazzled by it. Dazzled, and a little chills, because no mother can avoid a twinge of jealousy at such a moment—yet the next moment she was telling herself inwardly, that it was what she wanted for Kent—his complete and utter happiness, and if this little "cotton doll"—you'll give it to him, then the "cotton doll" should be Mrs. Stanley's cheerfully accepted daughter-in-law!

But even as she thought it, she shed a little—and poured herself another cup of coffee because the first one had grown cold.

THE END.

OLD-TIME FIRE-FIGHTING.

When James Watt began his fine work of making steam engines better, he could hardly have dreamed of the many uses which would be found for steam power. His first thought was to improve a mine pump which had broken down. Later he learned that steam could be used to drive boats. He died after tests had been made with steam locomotives but before they had won much success.

"Other engines reach the scene to find that the fire had gone roaring up the chimney and elevator shaft. It has burst through the ventilator, and is filling the air with flame and sparks."

"As the front door is opened, the men are met by a gush of fire and smoke that hides them from view."

"Line after line of hose is laid. Stream after stream is directed into the basement. Ladders are reared and other streams are carried to the floor above."

"An iron pipe that towers 50 feet in air is placed before the burning building. At the top of the pipe, water is hurled from a nozzle through windows of the highest floor."

The writer adds that almost before the horses have "stopped before" the fire has been put out and "the roaring furnace becomes a steaming, soggy mass."

Often three horses were hitched to an engine. They were unhitched after reaching the fire, and were tied or held by the bridle some distance away. People were thrilled when they saw them galloping along as they pulled the fire engines.

So, They Will Talk About We-uns Down South, Will They?

So, they WILL talk about we-uns down south, heah, will they? And about the K. K. K.? Heh! Heh! Heh!

Quick, Watson, my bed sheet. And make it a clean one this time. (I ain't had a drink of water since Shiloh! Or is it repeal?) Light dat fiery cross, man, and I'll be on my way.

Yes, suh, we-uns is being sniped at agin. I mean we-uns down heah in Dixieland. (Old times dere are not forgotten.)

Yes, suh. Dat old Debbil, Cibil War, done reared its ugly haud once more.

And it gives me already yet, pals, a pain in the mid-section to read about how another fight promoter with some preliminary slasher has gone back nawth with a yarn about a couple of gunmen sitting in the front rows giving his slasher the old gimlet eyes. It does indeed. A most severe pain.

One Mr. Freddy Rogers, who handled a fighter in Savannah against Joe Knight last week, in which the boxer, introduced as George Pavlick, lost a decision, has gone back to Cleveland with the yarn that the chill was put into his fighter's heart and the shivers in his backbone by a couple of Kluxers in Savannah, Georgia.

His idea was that they loved Mr. Joe Knight so well they were not going to let any Dr. Amyanke beat the Georgia boy. So, Mr. Rogers is quoted as saying, "they warned him he'd better not win."

Ho, hum, alas and alack. The main thing I object to in a phoney yarn such as that is that Joe Jacobs did it much better and with some artistry. Dot Yussel had them in their bed sheets and guns on their hips and all that sort of thing when his man Mike McGuire came down to Columbus, Ga., to drop a decision to the then Georgia schoolboy, Willie Stribling. (Twice the time Harry Ertle gave three decisions, the last one on the train.) Jacobs did it well. He could really act.

IT SOUNDED BETTER.

I suppose it sounded better for Freddy Rogers to take his man back to Cleveland with some sort of yarn to explain his loss.

The south used to tear its shirt about the late W. L. Stribling. I've torn mine lots of times about that boy. But the south hasn't got around to tearing its shirt about Joe Knight, of Cairo. He's a fine boy and he has a good record and he fights as well as any southpaw can. But he never has clicked to the extent that William Lawrence Stribling did. Were a fighter to come along who could beat Joe Knight it would cause no outbreak.

The K. K. K. charges are laughable. They were when Joe Jacobs made them at Columbus. This time the act falls a little flat. It's so old, you know. And no one laughs at old age. Not nice boys and girls, anyhow.

And the people of Savannah don't care who wins fights—not to the extent of putting a couple of gimlet eyes in the ringside.

Not, unless, of course, they were just having a lot of fun—wanting to see if Freddy Rogers was dumb enough to fall for a yarn that Joe Jacobs made famous. They may have laughed at his castanet knees.

I object to them infringing on the Joe Jacobs copyright. It is his act and no one else can do it as well. The boys never bothered Joe Jacobs or Mike McGuire but it makes such a swell yarn that I help carry it on. Fact is, I wish it were true. And I always insist it is true. But, as I said, it is painful to find some ham actor trying to play the role which Joe Jacobs, the Barrymore of the ring managers, made famous at Columbus.

The Cleveland papers didn't fall for it very hard. They just printed it—the old squawk about the Civil War.

Yes, suh, we rebels is being sniped at agin. Will someone

GIANTS, BUCS SPLIT A BILL, 5 TO 4 AND 4 TO 3

New York Rallies To Win Opener, Homers Featuring Spurt.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 15.—(AP)—The Giants and the Pirates defied the elements for nearly two hours today in their efforts to play a double-header and when they finally succeeded they broke even, a performance which brought little profit to either team.

The league-leading New Yorkers won the first game, 5 to 4, in the strength of a four-run rally in the first inning, which was subjected to the long delay because of a thunderstorm. Pittsburgh rallied to take the second, 4 to 3, as Waite Hoyt outpitched Hal Schumacher to gain his third victory in four days.

A crowd of 18,000 hung around through the storm and while the field was being dried by burning gasoline on the base paths afterward.

The Giants used home runs to accomplish the downfall of Larry French in the opener. With two on base when time was called, they came back to score once on Mel Ott's single and three more on Travis Jackson's belted hit 16th homer of the season. Bill Terry hit for the circuit in the fourth for what proved to be the winning run.

The Bucs drew Fred Fitzsimmons to cover with two hits in the sixth and nipped Al Smith for two more to complete a three-run rally. They stopped one short of a tie, however, and Smith held them in check to the finish.

Hoyt pitched eight-hit ball in the second game and fanned five while Schumacher and Bill Bell, who pitched the eighth inning and was charged with the defeat, granted only seven.

The Pirates twice pulled out behind in the early innings with a two-run rally in the third and with Vaughn's circuit blow in the sixth only to have the Giants tie it up.

The winning run was scored off Bell in the eighth on Fredy Lindstrom's double and Gus Suhr's single after a pinch three-bagger by George Watkins had enabled New York to knot the count for the second time in the first half of the inning.

Chicks Score One in Ninth on Error To Beat Crackers, 4-3

OANA, KOEHLER MAKE ERRORS AND LOSE GAME

Duke Scores on Error After Pip Lets Ball Get By.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 15.—The two errors of an otherwise well-played ball game today gave the Chicks a run in the ninth inning and a 4-3 victory over the Crackers in the final of the series of four.

Just when it looked as though the valiant athletes would have to struggle into extra innings, Pip Koehler, the Atlanta second baseman, kicked Wee Willie Duke's boulder on what should have been the third out.

That was bad enough for the Crackers, but Henry Oana, the center fielder, made it worse. He let a single by Billy Hayne with two runs in, two out and two on in the fifth. Only one man reached first base on the Virginia, his pitching rival, Chester Martin, seeking him for a pop single in the eighth. Mr. Henry was in a quite pitching mood.

Well, deserved. Even though the victory was unearned, it was a well-deserved one. Young Henry, the fast ball right-hander, who came to the rescue of Billy Hayne with two runs in, two out and two on in the fifth. Only one man reached first base on the Virginia, his pitching rival, Chester Martin, seeking him for a pop single in the eighth. Mr. Henry was in a quite pitching mood.

So, for that matter, was the left-handed Martin. He gave the Chicks 11 hits, but, except for the first and fourth innings, pitched fine baseball. Lefty Hayne, on the other hand, was assaulted for nine hits in his 4 and 2-3 innings on the mound, but escaped real danger by nice twirling in the pinches.

Wee Willie, the duke, had a hand in garnering the first Chick run when he smacked a scorching double to left behind Cal Chapman's single to center, the double scoring Chappie.

The Crackers got that run back in the first of the fourth when Buster Chatham singled, stole second as Joe Palmisano fanned and counted on Martin's single to center.

That spurred the Chicks to further effort and they garnered two in their half and had Martin on the ropes. Joe Hutcheson singled for an opener and went to second when Babe Benning beat out a slow single. The pitcher, George Knothe sent them up with a sacrifice and Ramon Couto, the Cuban menace, ballooned one between right and center that was good for two bases and scored both runners. Hayne and Hamel left the menace stranded.

Bayne moved out of the party in the sixth as the Crackers tied the score. Oana walked for a starter and went to second on Koehler's single. Harry Taylor popped out, but Chatham walked. Palmisano brought home two runs with a single to center and brought on Henry, who got Martin.

Then the young pitcher settled down for a real duel with the misuses contributing the misfortune of Martin in the ninth.

THE TUNNEL

Mr. Mott, a Prosaic Businessman, Saw Them Quarrel and He Did His Best To Reconcile Their Love.

By L. M. McLANAHAN.

It had been years since Mr. Mott had thought of the tunnel as anything other than an engineering achievement and a nuisance. Twenty years ago he might have thought it, as well, one of those fortuitous circumstances which make possible the kissing of one's girl in public.

Therefore, Mr. Mott did not at first attach any significance to the fact that the young couple who sat in the seat ahead of him had passed through the tunnel when they had been entering it. When

Mr. Mott received the surprise of his life when Mr. Mott caught her up and kissed her at the door. Before he had finished his supper Mrs. Mott excused herself and hurried to her room. There she unpacked the suitcase she had packed that afternoon.

Back at the table Mr. Mott sat finishing his dessert. His eyes had been fixed on the thought of the tunnel. He thought he would like to tell his wife about it. But he rejected the idea. She might not understand. "Funny," he mused, "funny how a kiss can make things happen."

Tomorrow, "Thing of Beauty," by Elsie Forster Jones, reveals the dismay of a relief wife who was being tricked by a stern-faced agent of the city charities. A threat to withdraw aid was made, but in the end love of beauty prevailed.

Pinned Under Auto, 10-Year-Old Boy Hurt
Caught beneath an overturned auto, Dan Perdue, 10, of a Peters street address, was admitted to Crawford W. Long hospital Wednesday night suffering from a fractured wrist and other injuries.

According to police reports, the boy was walking near Gordon and Ashby streets, when a car driven by L. W. Corley, of 454 Ashby street, S. W., was struck by a machine driven by Mrs. E. C. Clower, 554 Peoples street, and was overturned on top of the boy.

Mrs. Clower told police she was crowded by a truck and was forced to start him on, causing her car to collide with Corley's auto.

"She Unpacked the Suitcase."
he did finally become aware of it became something of a game to him. After that when Mr. Mott boarded the 5-15 he found a seat behind the couple, or as near them as possible.

A calloused second finger of the right hand told Mr. Mott that the girl was a stenographer. He thought she must be about 20. Her hair was dark and curled in ringlets behind her ears. Best of all, Mr. Mott liked her eyes. They were of a hue so on the borderline that some would have called them green, others blue. Mr. Mott simply thought them "expressive."

The boy was, perhaps, 25, tall, serious-faced, not handsome, yet not unattractive, with sandy hair and decided blue eyes.

Mr. Mott was middle-aged, married, but childless. Perhaps that is why he became so interested in them.

Mrs. Mott looked up from her breakfast grapefruit. Her husband's head was hidden on the other side of the parapet which was his morning nap.

"Joseph," Mrs. Mott began.
"No answer."
"Do you realize, Joseph, that you haven't spoken to me this morning?"

"Nothing," she said. "I merely asked our maid to pour more coffee."

"Maid? What maid? We haven't any maid. . . . Oh," he smiled caustically. "You're being funny."

"Not half as funny as you," But Mr. Mott was deeply interested in the stock market page at the moment.

As usual, Mr. Mott had to hurry to catch his train. As usual, Mrs. Mott had to find his muffer and gloves, help him into his coat and start him on his morning sprint for the station.

After he had gone she stood for a long while looking into the hall mirror. The reflection there was a bit toward the plump side, a bit saggy at the jawline. She addressed herself in the glass:

"What did you say?"
"He hasn't kissed you more than twice in a month?"
She peered at the glass more closely, as though she was something she had seen before.

"Why," she said, "you're crying."

Mr. Mott sensed something wrong the moment he boarded the 5-15 that evening. "The kids (he'd begun to think of them as in his mind) were sitting far apart. They were silent and sullen."

Mr. Mott wanted to crack their heads together, to say:
"Young fools, you love each other. I know it. What else is it, if not love? Kiss and make up."

The girl showed signs of breaking the silence. Mr. Mott learned forward. He couldn't help it. He had to hear.

"Terry," pleaded the girl, "please listen. I had to go on that party. It was the boss."

"Your job? Your job? Don't you think about me?"
"Of course. I was thinking of you. That's why I had to think of my job. I've got to even more."

There was stubbornness in the boy. "I can take care of myself, and you. It was a cold moment."

The girl had reached her limit. "You can? That's a laugh! Out of a job right now. . . couldn't hold onto the one you had. . . making the rounds every day. . . you can support me! That's a laugh! There was a pause. Then, 'Oh, darling, I'm so sorry.'"

But the damage was done. The boy sat, but silent, biting his lip. The girl looked out the window, seeing nothing. Mr. Mott wanted to shake them.

They entered the tunnel. Mr. Mott moved swiftly.

The light came again as they emerged into the open. Mr. Mott strained his ears. Her voice came, low vibrantly almost unbelievably:
"My dear—you do love me."

When Mr. Mott got off at his station they were close together, ob-

Long's Assembly Launches

Shaping of Walmsley Bonds

Docile Lawmakers, in Special Session, Begin Task of Making Huey Boss of New Orleans.

BATON ROUGE, Aug. 15.—(AP)—Senator Huey P. Long looked on and smiled broadly today as his obedient house of representatives cracked down on the hostile New Orleans city government, which is already harassed by the occupancy state route.

The senator chafed at his first victory of the special session, now a day old, when the house adopted a resolution to investigate the official duties of Orleans Mayor James J. Walker.

The action was described as "similar to the New York city investigation by Samuel Seabury," which resulted in his resignation.

James J. Walker, it was aimed at Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley, of New Orleans, bitter enemy of Long since his old regular organization defeated the senator's candidates at the city polls in January.

To Speed "Spite" Bills
The house quickly voted to change its methods of procedure to speed up action on what anti-administrators describe as a multitudinous number of "spite" bills against New Orleans.

The rules were suspended, and all measures were sent pell mell to the committee, which met immediately to register for the session, starting at a night session tonight. The spectacular procedure will permit final passage of all the legislation tomorrow morning.

The senate, where Long holds a comfortable majority, met for a short time and adjourned, waiting to act on measures passed by the house.

Walmsley's old regular members of the legislature fought bitterly against the steamroller tactics, but were overwhelmed by the administration majority.

One approached pathos as opponents fought a blind and hopeless battle in the tenuous city-state struggle which is making Louisiana history.

Walmsley's forces hung up their victory in politically battle-scarred New Orleans where Senator Long's national guardmen are still holding the registration for the September 11 congressional election, in which both Walmsley and Long are supporting rival candidates.

Judge Cat Bond's civil district court has issued a temporary injunction restraining the troops from holding the office, and has cited three militia officers for contempt for failing to obey it, but the troops were there just the same.

Judge Blamed
The same judge, who it was charged on the house floor today was irregularly elected, has rendered judgment holding that an act providing for a neutral police board in the city was unconstitutional. It was because of this action, he called, that he called a special session to deal with the city.

The new board would have taken control of the police from Walmsley. The legislature had before it scores of measures which could almost completely throttle the finances of the city and others which would increase Long's power.

One provided that the city could not tax anything not already taxed by the state; another that all money collected from gasoline taxes should be placed in a state treasury, and still another which would create a state police force with power to make arrests anywhere in the state.

Two suits filed in civil district court seeking to force the city to recognize the new police board, but Judge Bond said that he would not grant them, and the second was not pressed. He said he had already held the act unconstitutional.

The United States grand jury was scheduled to reconvene at New Orleans tomorrow, presumably to continue its investigation of income tax returns of Senator Long and some of his associates.

Two unnamed sergeants of the national guard were reported sentenced by military court today for attacking the Orleans Times-Picayune reporter and photographer when they investigated a report that a militia member had fired his pistol in a crowd at the restaurant. Each was sentenced to 30 days in the guardhouse and fined $25.

The legislature also had before it measures which would clamp down on gambling in the state.

One measure would confine race horse betting to the enclosure of race tracks and another would strengthen the anti-lottery law.

The scene in the house chamber of the $5,000,000 skyscraper built by Long when he was governor, was dramatic. The delegates, ranged on both sides of the chamber, were investigating conditions in New Orleans.

It was one of those rare occasions on which the factionalists on the floor of the legislature were in conflict. The scene was a rare sight, as the members sat forward in their seats, for once refraining from talking to each other.

The galleries held only a bare handful of spectators. For some unexplained reason, the general public has chosen to remain away.

Across the back of the chamber, Senator Long, holding his straw hat under his arm, stalked back and forth with Governor Allen, awaiting the roll call.

Long Smiles at Victory
When the voting machine flashed victory, Senator Long smiled broadly, slapped Governor Allen on the back and moved out of the chamber into the executive suite.

As drawn, the resolution would authorize the appointment of four senators and five representatives to investigate the New Orleans city government in all its branches and the judiciary of the city. It was originally proposed that the investigation report to the legislature in February, 1935, but the authors changed this to read "by February 1, 1936."

During a discussion in the house, both Senator Long and Governor Allen remained behind the brass railings, carefully refraining from coming on the floor to speed up procedure as they had in the recent session.

Shortly after the vote, however, Senator Long came down into the house to talk to friends and Lester, of West Feliciana, one of his most outspoken critics, at once moved to invoke rule 20, the "anti-louche lobby."

"There are 'louche' lobbyists in the house and I move to clear the chamber of them," said Lester.

The rule was invoked, but Senator Long moved quickly behind the rail again before the gavel fell on the order.

Only once during the long, tense argument was there a threat of disturbance. It occurred as Ehrhardt, of Grant, staunch state administrationist, in a burst of oratory in behalf of the New Orleans investigation and in denunciation of vice conditions which he said existed in the city, shouted:

"Put this investigation through and make New Orleans a decent place to live in an indecent place."

As arguments at times hurried between the two men, Ehrhardt made an apologetic gesture and an inaudible reply and Casse resumed his chair. Ehrhardt concluded his remarks shortly afterward.

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 15.—(AP)—To increase personal knowledge of commercial and social trends in South America, a group of publishers and aviation officials gathered here today to discuss the state of the southern continent tomorrow.

The party will make the 15-day 15,000-mile journey over Caribbean, islands and east coast South American countries in the Brazilian Clipper, a commercial plane, which recently established world records in many transport classes.

The Brazilian Clipper's flight to South America will be the initial trip for the large aircraft, and it will be christened at Rio de Janeiro by Senora Getulio Vargas, wife of the president of Brazil.

Eight members and a special representative of the Associated Press are among those making the trip.

They are: J. H. Stahman, publisher of the Nashville Banner; Frank E. Gannett, chairman of the Gannett Newspapers; John Cowles, associate publisher of the Des Moines Register and Tribune.

Roy Howard, publisher of the New York World Telegram; Paul Patterson, publisher of the Baltimore Sun; Jerome E. Brown, publisher of the Syracuse Post-Standard and vice president of the American Newspaper Publishers Association; H. V. Jenkins, publisher of the Savannah Press; Amos G. Carter, publisher of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram; and William F. Brooks, executive assistant to the general manager of the Associated Press.

Out of All Primaries, F. D. R. Informs Press
WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—(AP)—President Franklin D. Roosevelt, in response to inquiries at his regular press conference, said today he is taking no part in any primary campaign, regardless of press dispatches or statements hither to made by the press.

The president's support had been claimed by a number of candidates in various parts of the country.

Friends of Senator Stephens, Democrat, Mississippi, had been suggesting the president was supporting him in his race for renomination, after arrangements had been made for the senator to deliver the chief address at the White House on his week.

Stephens' opponents denied the president was aiding the senator.

Atlanta Beauty Begins Work as Film Chorine
HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 15.—(AP)—One of the south's illustrious families today placed a dark-eyed daughter in the picture "College Rhythm," now production of the United Artists.

Margaret Sage, of Atlanta, Ga., began going through her steps as a member of the chorus in the picture "College Rhythm," now production of the United Artists.

Daughter of Ira Yale Sage II, whose father built the Southern railway; grand-niece, she says, of Russell Sage, the financier, and a great-grand-niece of Elihu Yale, founder of Yale University, the tall, brunette beauty came to Hollywood for a try at the movies because of a financial stringency.

"I came out here to work because I need the money," she said. "I made my social debut last winter in Atlanta and then I decided to try for a place on the screen."

U. S. CRUISER TO BEAR MARY'S BODY TO BELGIUM
ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 15.—(AP)—The body of Mary, of Belgium, ambassador to the United States, will be placed aboard the cruiser Pensacola here tomorrow for transportation to its native land.

All officials attached to the Naval Academy, who are not out of duty, the academy band and the midshipmen will assemble to form the escort and guard of honor for the cortege.

The body will be carried by uniformed officers having black mourning bands on their left arms and sword hilts.

A salute of 19 guns, one gun each minute, will be fired to the cadets, because this action landed him in Grady hospital Wednesday night for treatment of a badly lacerated head.

Murphy told Hospital Patrolman H. C. Miller that he ran out of gas on Bankhead avenue.
